Under the original charter as amended, the institution is authorized to establish, organize, maintain and conduct intermediate, secondary, undergraduate, and graduate education in the State of Connecticut. It is also authorized to perform such other works of education and charity as may be determined by its by-laws and pursuant to the general statutes relating to the organization of corporations without capital stock. Here it should be noted that the amendment of Section 2 eliminates the matter of performing works of religion as was indicated in the original charter.

The University is authorized to offer degrees of Associate of Arts and Associate of Science, (Junior College), and Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science. While the incorporating Act authorized Sacred Heart University to offer graduate education, such is not encompassed as part of present University planning or in the foreseeable future. Section 2 of the incorporating Act as amended, constitutes the objectives as stated in the charter.

Sacred Heart University derives its objectives from the philosophy of Christian education in twentieth century America. It exists to assist men and women to develop completely as human persons in an environment which recognizes both the supernatural and the natural. Specifically its objectives are:

1. Intellectual development of its students through an integrated program of liberal education with concentration in a particular academic field. By introducing the student to the principal fields of knowledge, it seeks to help him develop his powers to know, judge, and reason, to analyze and synthesize, to discriminate, discern and appreciate.

3. Career preparation for business, for teaching, and for the areas in which liberal arts are applicable to the diversified needs of society. The study and analysis of principles and skills are supplemented where appropriate by practical experience.

When Sacred Heart University was formed there were at the outset, nine faculty members, all with the rank of instructor during that first year. The administrative officers presented to the Board of Trustees a recommendation for a statement of objectives. After studying the recommended statement and making such modifications as they thought necessary, the Board of Trustees specified the objectives. These were filed with the State Department of Education. There was an understanding that as soon as a more complete faculty had been assembled that the faculty would be free to reconsider the objectives and to recommend modification of them as they saw fit.

When one reflects upon each of the objectives, it would be difficult to quarrel with the value of the objectives as stated. Certainly intellectual development through an integrated program of liberal education with concentration in a particular academic field is essential if an individual is said to be truly liberally educated.

While there has been some difference of opinion upon the part of some faculty members as to the suitability of the first objective to all of the student body of Sacred Heart University, this objective should be considered with the qualification that the faculty should work toward its achievement by viewing students as individuals and educating each to the optimum degree possible in keeping with his potential.

The second objective would appear to be very fitting and necessary at this time in the history of our country and in the light of national and world problems. That the third objective as stated is being met can be noted from the types of business establishments employing Sacred Heart University graduates who have taken career preparation. Among them are the following, some of whom have recruited our graduates from succeeding graduating classes:
