SHU Takes the Test

A person who decides he should go to college must choose the school that most nearly fits his needs and personal likes. One of the major factors he should learn about his school is, "Is the school fully accredited?" How is a university or a college accredited? Higher educational schools in the United States are accredited by six regional accrediting authorities. These authorities base their judgment on the equipment, financial status, requirements and teaching standards of the schools. State boards of education also accredit schools in their state.

Recently a New England regional team of prominent educators evaluated Sacred Heart University. Its members included Dr. Robert A. Shepard, who is the Dean of Liberal Arts at Northeastern University in Boston, Mass. He was graduated from DePauw University in 1941 and received his Bachelor of Science degree from Yale in 1944 and Ph.D. in 1949. Another member of the visiting committee is Dr. Woodrow W. Balduz, a Professor of Business and Chairman of the Department of Management at Simmons College, Boston, Mass. Before accepting this position in 1966, he was associated for ten years with the University of California at Los Angeles, as Assistant Professor of Office Management and Business Education. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Oklahoma and his Master's and Doctor of Education degrees from UCLA.

Mr. Richard Chapin, President of Emerson College in Boston, Mass., graduated from Milton Academy in 1942, received his S.B. from Harvard and a M.B.A. in 1949.

One other member of the committee is Dr. Maria M. McHugh, Dr. McHugh, who received her BA in history at Manhattanville and her Ph.D. in history from Radcliffe, is now Professor and Chairman of the Department of History at Newton College of the Sacred Heart in Newton, Mass.

The investigation is now completed. The committee will forward its preliminary report to President Kidera in approximately three weeks. Dr. Kidera will scrutinize the report to make sure that the investigating committee acted upon proper information. He will then send the preliminary report and his own remarks on this matter to the Commission of Higher Education who will hand down the final decision on the grading of Sacred Heart University.

Discrepancies in Female Salaries

In light of Sacred Heart University's Self-Evaluation Report, and Supplement to the Self-Evaluation Report, certain facts have been derived which might lead one to question the attitude of those in monetary control of the University towards women in a teaching role.

From a total of 47 full-time faculty members 15, or 22 per cent, are women. The women include: one professor, the second lowest paid associate professor, the lowest paid assistant professor, and the lowest paid instructor. No woman receives the highest monetary return of any of the above mentioned faculty categories.

Also included in this regard are the facts, that the three lowest paid full-time faculty members are women and have an average of five years experience at the University, that the three lowest paid assistant professors are women who have an average of 6.6 years at this institution, that only two of the 26 highest faculty salaries are received by women, and that six women, one with a Doctorate degree, receive salaries of less than $9,000. More specific examples include the case of two faculty members of opposite sexes, both of whom are in the same department and holders of doctorate degrees. A difference of three years experience at this University lies between them, while a discrepancy of over $4,000 lies between their salaries. The woman has the greater experience at this institution and the lesser salary.

In another instance, a male and female faculty member from the same department, with the same number of years at the University (five years) and equal degrees (M.A.), have a salary difference of over $1,000, with the woman receiving the lesser amount.

These discrepancies and others like them, have occurred and accumulated over the years. Efforts by the present administration have begun to insure the elimination of present discrepancies, as well as to eliminate their occurrence in the future.

Letters to the Editor

OBELISK
Sacred Heart University

To the Editor:

Last week, I was asked to write a letter to the editor of the Oblisk. In my letter, I expressed my concern about the Tuesday night movies being shown at the university. I believe that these movies are not appropriate for a university setting.

I am writing to you to express my support for your decision to stop showing movies that are inappropriate for a university setting. As a student at Sacred Heart University, I believe that it is important for the university to set a high standard for itself. I believe that the university should not allow movies that are inappropriate for a university setting to be shown.

I would like to thank you for your efforts to improve the atmosphere at Sacred Heart University. I believe that your actions are a testament to the values that Sacred Heart University holds dear.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Dr. Alan H. Jones, of Ann Arbor, Michigan, has joined the faculty of Sacred Heart University as an associate professor and chairman of the education department.

Dr. Jones holds bachelor's, master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan. His undergraduate major was social science and he concentrated on comparative education and the social foundations of education in his graduate work. He also did post-doctoral study at the University of Michigan.

Most recently, an assistant professor at Eastern Michigan University, Dr. Jones has also taught at the University of Michigan and in the Ann Arbor, Mich., public schools. He has worked as a reporter on the "Ann Arbor News," and in the news and publication departments and community-adult education division of the University of Michigan.

He has published articles in "Social Education" and "Notes and Abstracts in Social Foundations of American and International Education."

Dr. Jones, professional, university and civic affiliations include: American Educational Studies Association; American Educational Research Association; Politics in Education Special Interest Groups; Intra-University International Teacher Education Conference; National Association; and members of Study for Cont.

Community Issues.

Lani Hall, once the lead singer for Blood, Sweat and Tears has recently decided to go it on her own. Miss Hall released a solo album on A&M Records, produced by Herb Alpert who discovered and made famous Brasil 66. Miss Hall renders a "Jong Dixie" is BS&T's best since their second album. The group's fifth and long awaited album should be one to remember.

Remember the first time you heard "Hot Rod Lincoln" on the radio? You said to yourself "Commander who?" right? Well, Commander Cody and his Lost Planet Airmen are back with "Hot Licks, Cold Steel and Truckers Favorites." The Commander and his crew put together a much more country sounding album than their previous effort. Best one goes "Truck Stop Rock" and "I Should Have Been Me."

A current Top 100 record worth giving a careful listening to is, "American City Suite" by Cash-Fisher. The group is more than a mere transcription of a story of a friend, in this case, a man and West. It is the 11-minute sounding album than their previous effort. Best one goes "Truck Stop Rock" and "Should Have Been Me."

Many teachers at Sacred Heart are related to the fatherhood of knowledge in their respective fields. One such committee faculty member is Dr. Michael Kriegsfeld. Aside from his teaching duties with the Sociology Dept. here at S.H.U., Kriegsfeld is involved in work in the field of Psychotherapy.

Dr. Kriegsfeld came to Sacred Heart last year for the Spring semester only. This year, he is in residence and teaching positions at Hunter College and the Graduate School of Education at both N.Y.U. and C.W. Post. He has done work for the City of New York as a consultant with the Youth Board and Department of Public Welfare. His knowledge of the field of Psychotherapy has facilitated his work in social service.

Dr. Kriegsfeld believes learning is more than a mere transference of facts, which is necessary and important for certain fields. However, in the social sciences, Kriegsfeld believes teaching and learning is more than a mere transference of facts, which is necessary and important for certain fields.

In closing, it must be remembered that all figures given are "per semester" figures, and will double by the end of the school year.
The last stop of the day for the state political stumpers is the church hall at St. Timothee Church. This old, drab hall must have been the sight of many card parties, dancing, and C&W ballroom dances. The stage which has seen halldoor stage plays is worn and tired; tonight despite the dull blue background in is brightened by the many political aspirants hoping to be mentioned during the evening festivities. To the left of the stage, in the corner, Riches Three Little Bells are featured tonight, in their multi-colored jackets and black pants with their accordions, saxophone and three-piece drum set. Some how, as they play their songs of bygone days, the gaudy decor peculiarly fits. The parish has done well tonight. The basketball court is full. A few mums and young people occupy the balcony. The aisles are filled with people who wait in serenity, the political stumpers, with glee.

In the third row from the front, just right of center, an obese woman in a black dress munches a sandwich with two little kids crawl over her. The man next to her looks on with complete disinterest.

The middle aged men who are political aspirants are not the only ones to congregate around the makeshift bar drinking themselves into a stupor in order to add a little more levity to the already exoriant crowd. No political gathering would be complete without the "loyal" girls that sit in the back spreading the warm hearted greetings of their candidates. The candidates also have their pins, stickers and for a mere 50¢ a person can have a picture taken and stamped on a party button.

The crowd walks with growing anticipation. They notice the smoke from the black cigars have already created a haze around the blue ribbons that hang overhead. The crowd is restless having heard three selections from the band. Suddenly when the children are climbing their walls the band is sufficiently filled with music, the band plays a roaying welcome to announce the arrival of each speaker. The crowd goes disappointedly. They half hope to have witnessed a halo around the mayor's head. Amid the thrashing of hands and the sound of the band, however, the state political stumpers for the evening make their way to the stage.

To the non-political rally attender it would appear that the evening is 35% coming to an end. He hopes that after a brief introduction the political stumpers will start and the young innocent novice could never be more wrong. He probably forgets that the national anthem must be played. But since there is a Polish band and this is the Polish stronghold of the town, the Polish national anthem is also played. After Riches Three Little Bells do their best, a man in a black tuxedo steps to the podium. He introduces who else but the pastor who gives an invocation The purpose is to set a religious tone. The political aspirant in the first row on the stage must be introduced and we are now introduced to the Polish stumper. In any event this is made by a senator who forgets to introduce the political stumpers. The pastor, whose name escapes us, introduces the speaker is finally allowed to introduce the political stumpers. The speaker is finally allowed to introduce the pastors who introduce the candidates with the candidates holding their hands in the air as if reaching to heaven for a miracle. The speaker then allowed to praise every candidate and the order of rank each political candidate will continue. The mayor takes the stage? The political rally attender is overwhelmed by the political rally. The candidate also have their pins, stickers and for a mere 50¢ a person can have a picture taken and stamped on a party button.

Poll Results
Student returns to the movie poll for the戯iew of Sigma Tau Omega were unexpectedly great. Some three hundred students were forced to watch seventeen films to be shown at Tuesday Night Film Group. From a field of thirty-five-run and not so recent and not so recent was not close, in order of popularity: 1) Mash 2) Taxi, A Space Odyssey 3) Catch '22 4) Rebel Without a Cause 5) The Boys in the Band 6) Psycho 7) French Wait Until Dark 8) Play Misty For Me 9) Take the A Train, Run 10) Daddy's Gone a-Hunting 11) Marooned-Willard 12) The Diary of Anne 13) Marx Brother's Duck Soup 14) I Love You Alice B. Toklas 15) Up the Down Staircase
This questionnaire represents a fusing of academic disciplines, sociology and political science, and their application to vital matters of immediate interest. It was prepared by the students of So 391 (Research Methods) in consultation with their instructor, Dr. Michael Kriegsfeld, and Dr. Paul Siff, director of the University Political Science Program. The results will be reported in The Obelisk and will show where the University community stands on the candidates and the issues. Please cooperate in this effort by taking the time to answer all the questions to the best of your ability. Thank you.

WHEN

When I'm alone
In need of company
Who'll say, "I'm here!"
Who'd understand?
Who will it be?

When I am wrong
And there's no other one-
No one to blame but me,
Who'll understand?
Who will it be?

When tongues spew slander-
Eyes stare viciously,
Who'll lift my hand
Who'll understand?
Who will?

WHEN

When you're gone
Who'll remember?
Who will?

WHEN

When I am empty
A empty memory
Who will remember now?
Who'll have missed me?

WHEN

When the sun sets
And the night goes on
Who will have missed me?
Who will remember now?

The long ride to the party was so successful. As we drove, meteoric rain beat relentlessly on the long, sleek hood of Abbie's metallic gold Mark III. Abbie played mostly Alice Cooper on his Lear Jet and was rapping his rings on the dashboard in time with the windshield wipers played bass. I was listening to a tape of Bob Dylan and the back seat, his head propped into doing a few riffs on Emerson into doing a few riffs on the piano. Keith was speeding and needed something to do anyway.

The crowd had gathered around the piano. Truman Capote vaulted atop the massive grand and did a flamenco. Rick was keeping the beat on a bar stool. Henry was smoking a Columbia with Mario Thomas. He beamed omnisciently at the crowd. Something in his expression struck me as being demonic and strangely ugly. Suddenly, I knew all. I was hit with a revelation, a preoccupation so terribly strange that, in my high, it knocked me on my ass.

Henry was from Mars. All the changes Rick had gone through; all my qualitied opinion that the everything was Henry's evil doing. It was all a strange, sort of anathema to the American left experimentalist. He had beamed omnisciently at the crowd. Something in his expression struck me as being demonic and strangely ugly. Suddenly, I knew all. I was hit with a revelation, a preoccupation so terribly strange that, in my high, it knocked me on my ass.

Sports

Unbeaten Providence College added Sacred Heart to its list of victims by pummeling the visiting Friars. Providence put their record at 4-2, following victories over Merrimac, Rick, and the prestigious city. Sadly, Farrell with two goals and Jim March and Mike Suffeltiello with one apiece that did in Sacred Heart. March also picked up an assist on one of Farrell's scores. Charlie Ferreira and Vic Solis scored for SHU. Coach Charles Eggarvari expected to have a hard time against Providence but things were made even harder because of injuries to Nino Del Cegno and Pete Bowes. Mark Wilcox was moved to Nineo's spot and Abbas Reza was moved to Mark's halfback position.

Right from the start the invaders from Rhode Island attacked the Pioneers' zone, getting off a shot one goal after another. It was 2-0 by the half time before Jim March scored on an assist from Tom Gilbride and it was Providence 4 Sacred Heart last year. Another good sized crowd watched the game despite the bad weather.

Intermural Sports

For those who may not have noticed, the intermural program has already begun. The first games of touch football were played Wednesday, October 11th at 4 p.m.; however, the roster deadline had to be extended several weeks before enough teams signed up to make it worthwhile. In contrast, last year more students took part in intermurals than ever before. Because of the interest that was shown, many new events were added. This year there is not only football, basketball, volleyball, bowling, table tennis and softball, but also, on 3 basketball, 2 on 2 volleyball, a team free-throw competition, and golfpith.

The intramurals are intended for those students who, for one reason or another, are not on a Varsity or Junior Varsity team for SHU and still want to take part in some kind of athletic competition. One does not have to be good to play and have fun. Everyone can't win and many of the Rhody team turned them back. Sacred Heart came up with many great defensive plays of their own and the score at the end of the half remained 1-0. Only 2:25 was used up on the clock when reserve Sandy Farrell put his first goal into the net on an assist from March. A little more than eight minutes later, at 10:50, Mike Suffeltiello, also a reserve, scored on an unassisted goal to make the score 3-0. Sacred Heart was deterred to score and it was the combination of a long lead pass by Vic Solis and a head shot by Charlie Ferreira at 14:15 that put them on the score board and made the count 3-1. Providence shot that score off when Farrell put his second one in at 21:00 to make it 4-1. It looked as though the game would end that way but on a late drive by the Pioneers, a hand-ball violation was detected which gave us a penalty kick. Vic Solis was chosen to kick it after lining it up into the right-hand corner of the net, making the final score 4-1. Greg Quick played another great game in the nets and came away with 25 saves, despite playing with a fractured wrist. Ron Lako, Joe Pajor, Mark Wilcox, and Vic Solis also played well for the home team. Sacred Heart was down to just fourteen healthy players for the game and they all put out a tremendous effort. The Pioneers came to town with a large team and played a total of twenty-one men, at times putting in four and five fresh players. Sacred Heart's record now stands at 1-3 as a result of the loss.

Public Action Group

A public action group, the Fairfield County Consumer University, this week set up headquarters at Sacred Heart University. Bill O'Brien, director of the consumer league, said that the group intends to act as a watchdog committee over unscrupulous area merchants and goad some practices come to the group's attention. SHU's office, donated free by the university for one year, is to serve as a collecting agency for citizen's consumer complaints.

Surveys and seminars are being planned in an effort to increase public awareness in matters of pricing policies, packaging, credit and guaran-

Claude McNeal will hold an audition on Tuesday, October 17, for Harold Pertner's latest play entitled "Old Times." This will make the first time in New England that this deep study of human relations in our times will be presented. You can get the script from the drama office, or read it on your own. It has three characters, two female and one male.

Handball and squash facilities are open daily from 9 a.m. till 5:30 p.m. Tournaments are run frequently. Squash lessons are available upon request.

A Faculty member for an Advisory Position with the new Cycling Club. All students interested in joining, please contact Miss Anger in the Gym Office.

The Red Foxes of Marist College opened their season in winning fashion by registering a 9-game winning streak that the Pioneers had accumulated over the past two seasons. Scoring for the visitors from Poughkeepsie, New York, were Tim Trotter, with a pair of goals, and Lou Hajas, while Charlie Ferreira had the lone score for Sacred Heart.

The game started under cloudy skies with rain threatening. During the first few minutes each team was feeling the other out until Tim Trotter got the first Marist goal with 6:50 used up on the clock. It proved to be a bad omen, for after it went into the net the rains came, and the remainder of the first-half was played during a steady downpour.

About mid-way through the half, Charlie Ferreira put on a spectacular one-man offensive show for the Pioneers. Marist was having trouble clearing the ball from their zone and Charlie came up with one shot after another at the visitor's net. One shot missed by inches and another hit the goalpost but he was determining to score and at 28:55 he put one past the Marist goalie to knot the score at 1-1.

The two teams played on even terms for a while, both of them trading shots on goal. Then, at 38:15, Lou Hajas scored on a rebound that hit the goalpost and it was Marist out in front again, 2-1. Trotter came back again at 41:20 with a penalty tacle leaving the count at 3-1 at the end of the first half. Sacred Heart started the second half with a lot of spirit but Marist was by this time confident of winning and they were content to play defense the rest of the way. They turned back many drives by the host team and by this time were playing without the services of regulars Pete Bowes and high-scoring Nino Del Cegno, both out of the contest with injuries. Sacred Heart's hope of a victory was thwarted and the long run of pre occupation very difficult for them to take down the home team. Sacred Heart was down to just fourteen healthy players for the game and they all put out a tremendous effort. The Pioneers came to town with a large team and played a total of twenty-one men, at times putting in four and five fresh players. Sacred Heart's record now stands at 1-3 as a result of the loss.
