Continuing Ed. Dept. Has New Director

Laudelina Martinez of Bronxville, New York, has been named Director of Continuing Education and assistant dean, which became effective February 18.

Dean Martinez succeeded Arthur Brissette, who had served in these administrative capacities for the last five years, and is returning to full-time teaching in the accounting program of the department of business at SHU.

President Kidera said, "Miss Martinez brings to Sacred Heart University an unique background in a wide range of continuing and adult education programs, several of which attracted national recognition and acclaim. In selecting Miss Martinez as assistant dean and Director of Continuing Education, we expect to accelerate further our continuous growth in part time registration. This spring our enrollment in part time students is 225 over that of a year ago. At the same time we are pleased that Miss Martinez will be our first woman dean."

Dean Martinez has directed special projects, in the School of New Resources (adult undergraduate program) at the College of New Rochelle. In that position, she oversaw the Weekend College, programs of community service, outreach to community organizations, and newly created programs in the area of personal and career counselling. The School of New Resources has three campuses, one in New Rochelle, the second in the Bronx, and the third for municipal employees in New York City.

Previous to her directorship at the College of New Rochelle, Dean Martinez coordinated language arts programs for a consortium of five New York colleges. She also has been a language arts specialist in the College of New Rochelle and in the New York City.

33 Student Teachers Get Assignments

By SARAH ANDERSEN

Thirty-three student teachers from Sacred Heart University have spring practice teaching assignments in 28 different elementary and secondary schools in Fairfield county and adjacent areas.

Dr. Bernard De-Wulf, Chairman of the Education Department, Sister Loretta Goosen, associate professor, and Mrs. Nancy Hartman, an assistant professor, are University supervisors for the program. In addition, each student teacher is directly supervised by a cooperating teacher in the school where student teaching is occurring.

Bridgeport student teachers, and cooperating schools include: Dale R. Beardsley, history, at Bassick High School; Angela J. Buonanno, grade 4, Dunigan School; Michael A. Duggan, mathematics in grades 7 and 8, Maplewood School; Kathleen H. Flynn, grade 4, Stratfield School Fairfield.

Also, America Hernandez, grade 1, Garfield School; Robert T. Seeley, history, Central High School; Diane A. London, grade 1, Waltersville School; Regina P. Moore, history, Central High School.

AMA Receives Charter

By JIM RUSSO

A collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association has been chartered this past January. Mr. George F. R. Miller, from the Business Department will be the chapter's advisor.

The collegiate chapter is geared toward gaining its members to a taste of their future employment, as well as their present curriculum. It will also serve as a liaison between the students and the department.

The collegiate chapter core goals are to assist business majors in the job market and introduce them to established people in the field of Research, Advertising, Sales, and other branches of business. The format of A.M.A. communications will be dinners and panel discussions.

Anna present consists of 26 members under officers: President, James Russo; Vice President, Sal Bennett; Treasurer, Nick Bonanno.

The collegiate chapter of the American Marketing Association is open to all students regardless of major. Any interested students should obtain more information from Mr. George F. R. Miller or attend the next A.M.A. meeting.

Professor Publishes

The results of Dr. Thomas Ruth's research on the atomic nucleus and its structural models has recently been accepted for publication in the Physical Review. An assistant professor of chemistry at SHU, Dr. Ruth presented his research at a meeting of the American Chemical Society in 1973.

Dr. Ruth began research at Clark University in 1972 and completed the experiments at Yale in the summer of 1973. His paper entitled Levels in Dy as Populated from Decay of 158 Ho in Equilibrium with 2.3h 158 Kr, investigates the accuracy of three accepted models of the nucleus.

Dr. Ruth's research indicates that the prolated model provides the most accurate picture of the atomic nucleus. Dr. Ruth's aim was to show that such research provides the foundation for theories and models used in explaining known facts and in making scientific predictions. He noted that scientists continually search for the most accurate, comprehensively supported model that succeeds in explaining natural events. By the constant application of experiment and theory, scientists hope to approach more closely an understanding of nature.

Phonathon' Will Call 1,200 SHU Parents

More than 1,200 Sacred Heart Parents will be invited personally to participate in the Second Annual SHU Parents Fund during a student conducted "Phonathon" March 10-13.

Mr. Tom Kennedy, Vice President and General Manager of Radio Station WNAB is chairman, while Patty Gallagher is student coordinator of the 1974-75 Parents Fund. "Tuition just isn't covering the cost of a SHU education anymore," Mr. Kennedy explained. "We must raise additional funds if we are to maintain the University's educational standards and avoid large tuition hikes."

More than 1,000 parents were contacted in last year's successful Phonathon and approximately 30 per cent responded with generous gifts. It is hoped that this year the number of parents reached and the size of the gifts will be increased to reach the Phonathon's goal of $5,000.

Any student wishing to participate in the Phonathon, can contact Patty Gallagher. What it requires is a commitment of one night March 10-13 to man the phones at the Southern New England Telephone Company from 6:30-9:00 p.m. Approximately 50 to 60 student volunteers with plenty of enthusiasm are needed. The outcome of the Phonathon will benefit students as well as SHU, so come on students give a helping hand it's for your own good!

EDITORIAL: Polarization

Sacred Heart University has been described by many as "a unique Catholic institute dedicated to higher education." We are of course this but we are also an extremely polarized, (segregated) campus.

It's not the fault of the structure here, but it is the fault of all students. Many organizations on campus were formed to "improve and aid the community." If they expect to improve the community they should start right here at S.H.U.

I would like to propose that an Inter-Relations Committee be formed, to close the communication gap between many students, and perhaps help make this campus a commuting institution. The commuting can cause some barriers. However, we are supposedly the "Pepsi Generation." Our ideals consist of "brotherhood." That includes whites, blacks, hispanics, Jewish, Italian, etc.

I don't see any of this "brotherhood" at SHU, except in the smallest sense. I see walls built up between each group. Let's destroy all walls and form a community that includes all the people.

I am not condemning organizations of any kind. I believe it's important to feel a part of something. But, if you are outside, how do you feel?

I'm asking all students at SHU to take a close look at what is happening to us. If you agree with me, let's start some positive actions.

Why can't the people at SHU pour into each other and blend to make "community"?

Why don't the organizations clasp hands and touch hello? Why don't we extend ourselves to share each other. Why can't we hear each other?

I have cried, crawled, and begged, long enough. I've walked alone down hallways, surrounded with cold chills.

Have I not a single friend?

Letters To The Editor

Our Senate

TO: The Editor

Members of the University community—and especially those familiar with the workings of the Senate—are aware of the tendency for items to pile up and not receive full senatorial consideration until late in the academic year. The agenda of the Senate contains many items of major consequence to the University. I would like to list those items (I hope the list is complete) and where appropriate, offer comments.

First, the Faculty Affairs Committee. That committee, whose members include: Chairperson Arillas Denyes, Eric Christensen, Ronald Chris, Steve Collard, Bernard DeWulf, Michael Harris, Maurice O'Sullivan, and Jonathan Stock, is responsible for a tenure report. This report, requested by the Board of Trustees, is supposed to provide information on a faculty tenure quota system for tenure faculty. The preliminary report, filed in December, 1974, was tabled; and it is anticipated that revised report will be forthcoming, dealing not only with the quota issue, but the concept of tenure at Sacred Heart University and the rather critical matter of the employment on non-tenurable faculty.

Some colleges have eliminated tenure, or have developed alternate systems; and it is imperative that serious attention be given to this matter.

Of all the issues, those pertinent to faculty and their status have the most profound effect in an institution of higher learning. A conglomeration of concern of both faculty and staff is the package of fringe benefits. The University's Major Medical Program—highly adequate when established—has suffered the vicissitudes of inflation. Hospital and medical costs have risen radically, rendering the aspects of the current program somewhat inadequate. While the program is generally superior to medical plans administered by other institutions, it is time for a serious review.

The Committee on Academic Affairs is deliberating on three major proposals. The principal one, in my judgment, is a review of the University's core requirement. That committee includes: Douglas Berlie, Douglas Bohn, Chairperson John Brooken, Charles Cyr, John Croffy, Edward Donahue, Charles Ford, Sr. Loretta, Bro. Philip, Robert Sweeney, and Grant Walker.

The core program, which took effect September, 1972, needs to be reviewed both from a philosophical and practical educational dimension. The specific purpose of the various core areas remains untested, regardless of the ultimate success in courses to meet the standards should be analyzed.

The core should be reviewed at a rate such to facilitate a fashion to specify the specific purpose for any given matrix of requirements. My own position on the matter is that there should be eight areas: aesthetic, philosophical-theological, historical, societal, identity (self knowledge from a psychological dimension), communication, methodological-scientific and modern language and culture. Regardless of the ultimate division, the essential point is the purpose of a core program.

The proposal I have placed before the committee does not radically alter the total number of semester hours required for a Baccalaureate degree. It simply reclassifies the program, specifying the purpose of the requirement. Concomitant to the issue is the definition of academic terms. Sacred Heart University has been described as "a new university, and has yet to develop its own historic philosophy base for such concepts as major-minor concentration program, areas of study, etc. This study is still in process.

A fascinating and highly controversial program is the notion of graduate study. This issue did not receive full deliberation within the University Senate, but as the senators know, has generated considerable amount of discussion. The specific program under discussion is the MBA or Master's in Business Administration. It is the purpose of this program to develop, on a part-time and relatively long-term basis, the education of older students drawn from or who are currently employed by regional businesses and corporations. The objective would be to assist graduates in the development of their managerial skills and, of course, to prepare them for higher positions in their chosen profession.

Another matter of interest is the academic status of key persons. In the fall, 1973, I requested chairpersons to review their duties, basing their proposals on the level of capital description of that position. That ad hoc committee's report, due for consideration, contains two issues that are of particular concern to chairpersons, i.e., the development of an election-selection process. This procedure, if accepted, would be a mediating device allowing members of the department and, possibly senior students, to nominate chairpersons who would then receive recommendation (or otherwise) from the Academic Vice President, and ultimate appointment by the President of the University.

The other matter is that of fiscal responsibility, i.e., an improved level of direct financial management by chairpersons especially with regard to expenditures for supplies, laboratory equipment, capital equipment, renovations, and student and audiovisual services.

The last issue I would like to bring to the readers' attention in a sense closes the circle of this statement, i.e., how the Senate functions. As the academic year progresses and work resumes, I hope that all members of the University community could participate (following simplified parliamentary rules). No vote will be taken, and no vote will be taken.

Thanks

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Brothers of Sigma Tau Omega Fraternity, I would like to take this time to thank you and express our deepest appreciation for the warm act of brotherhood bestowed by you, to the people of Lewis County, Kentucky.

You enabled us to make our Fifth Annual Appalachia Drive the most successful in its brief history.

Without your help, nothing would have been possible. So I would like to take this time to thank you for all your kindness and generosity.

Sincerely,

Peter Lucia and the Brothers of Sigma Tau Omega

Supports Professors

To the Editor:

After months of silent deliberation, I've decided to go to bat publicly for two fine gentlemen who have a special interest in our university, Professors Cyril and Stock. Our ideals are simple. We would like to take this time to thank you for all your kindness and generosity.

Aside from their superior teaching ability, these are men who have a special interest in students. If they are to be continued on page 6
ATTENTION SENIORS!

As promised, here is a list of recruiters coming on campus this semester, (a national collegiate problem). Even though the schedule is light, there is a good chance that you will find alums doing the rounds in various terms. If you have already done one or two days of interviewing, you have nothing to lose.

1. You may be pleasantly surprised as to what they have to offer, and the ways and means of actually getting a job.

2. It will give you a valuable experience with actual interviews.

3. Helps you to develop confidence in yourself and your abilities.

4. Some things to do for the interview:

   a. Sign up for it as early as possible.
   b. Prepare a resume to be given to the interviewer. (We will help you prepare it.)
   c. Obtain as much information about the interviewing organization as you possibly can.
   d. Be on time for your appointment.
   e. Dress appropriately.

Winter dollars got you down?

Well, don't despair, spring is just around the corner and until then there is plenty going on at SHU to keep you occupied!

A Student Researches Graffiti

By: BOB SORENSEN

I was staring at the cement wall in front of me when I noticed several words written in ink, "The Future of the World is in Your Hands." I laughed. It was a profound statement and at the same time very funny. I wondered who wrote it.

Another man came into the lavatory and went to a urinal. I looked at him. He too was reading something on the wall. He didn't laugh though. He turned his head and left I went over and looked at the wall. In pencil someone had announced, "The Fox Was Here." I looked at him. He too was going to his lavatory and went to a urinal. I walked around the metal partition and in a corner was a man writing on the wall. My heart began to pound and I felt awkward.

I decided I would lose him if I tried to pound and I felt awkward. "Why did you write on the wall?" I pleaded, "not while I'm here." He turned and rushed out of the room.

When I go into a public labatory, I don't take for granted seeing words on the walls. It's up there for a purpose, to be read. And Fred. I am saying something and I listen. What I see and hear sometimes makes me angry. Other times it entertains me. But think, how would the world be if the public lavatories were always covered with clean white walls?

The Great Cereal Race

C. Bruce McQueen

I stood in the aisle labeled "Breakfast Nook" surveying row after row of colorfully packaged cereals. To my right stood myself, "Whatever happened to the good old days of Corn Flakes and Wheaties?"

Like every year else, progress and commercialism have come of age in the breakfast industry. One computerized checklist included a grand total of 94 cereals to delight the taste buds of both young and old alike. sympathetic not saying: "Happy isn't any happier anymore." I agreed. I didn't think too many people were happy anymore. I don't make a habit of hanging around the men's room anymore. I felt my chances of meeting another graffitti writer were slim. And even if I did surprise one, most of my questions were answered.

The SHU NOOZE "pat" on the back award goes to the Ephesians for a great Skit Night. (See Keith, I was actually nice about it.)

The Great Cereal Race

There is the breakfast of the astronauts called "Breakfast Squares," the breakfast of the person-on-the-move known as "Instant Oats," and the breakfast of the toaster generation called "Pop Tarts." In short, there is something for everybody.

Advertising Fools You

"Fowl summer weather to the sun." I'm sure you have seen the picture of an Eastern Airlines jet soaring toward the sun, and why would anyone want to do that? If we decide to patentize that airline we think our vacation will fulfill all the implications of the American public.

Celebrities from all walks of life advertise products. Although few people consciously buy the product, following are some examples of how celebrities fool the American public.

From Westport is student teacher Gail Sugrue, algebra, Long Lots Junior High School, Westport.

From New Haven is Gary C. Veeder, State Hill School, Trumbull.

From Stamford, Louise Marie Petrock, grade 3, Riverbank School, Easton; Karen Ann Carpenter, grade 3, Garfield School, Karen Ann Fedor, Spanish, Hillcrest Junior High School.

Also from Trumbull, April Donofrio, social studies, Trumbull High School.

Amnesty: Just Or Unjust

With narrowed vision? "Liberty and Justice For All" justice and compassion, which prior convictions are not perfect, are needed not to dominate the streets, were proven right. "There will be no greater insult to those who have fought and died than to provide amnesty to those who deserted their country." A group of parents, believing the greatest insult was to learn nothing from the wasted deaths and the destruction of Vietnam formed "Gold Star Mothers for Amnesty." Patricia Simon, a Massachus- sets school teacher, became involved in organizing "Gold Star Mothers for Amnesty" because she objected to her 18-year-old son's death being used as an excuse to refuse amnesty. But the government announced that American war resistors had been nominated for the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize by Laureates. Dr. Ramsey Clark said, "The nation could perfectly cover the necessity for atonement. Alternative service also implies the necessity for atonement. Men who resisted felt this would compel them to deny the moral rightness of their acts even in the face of overwhelming evidence that the war was wrong. Some want a judicial type review of each case, with amnesty only for those who acted from conscientious conviction that all war is wrong. We cannot believe in civil disobedience as a legal act by which prior convictions are nullified and past violations of law are erased. Amnesty does not forgive, condemn or con­demn the lives of others, some went to courts-martial before whom they were found guilty, some were accused, some were supported by Laureates, Dr. George Wald pronounced that American war deaths—these sacrifices—have a positive meaning for us as Americans—sacred hearts. And people need to be reminded that soldiers did not forgive, condemn or con­demn the lives of others, some went to courts-martial before whom they were found guilty, some were accused, some were supported by Laureates, Dr. George Wald pronounced that American war...
Southern Conn. Humbles SHU Pioneers

Sacred Heart University girls' basketball team won its first game of the season by beating St. Francis of New York by the score of 82-56, on the winners' court.

Pacing the Pioneers' attack was Lori Jones with 23 points and Regina Wright with 19. Julie Valikutis and Karen Selavka were tough underneath with 12 and 10 rebounds, respectively.

Sacred Heart took one step closer to the NCAA playoff berth as they whipped Marist College by the score of 96-82.

SHU Routs Marist

Sacred Heart suffered its fifth loss in 22 games.

The Sacred Heart girl's basketball team is now half-way through its first season. Despite the fact that they have won once in five outings, the team boasts some outstanding talent. Under the leadership of Mickey Stratton, a former catcher for the Raybestos Brakettes, our lady hoopsters are improving rapidly. Leading scorers for the Pioneers have been Lori Jones and Regina Wright.

Lori is a good ball handler and outside shooter, while Regina's excellent eye aids her scoring. She is also strong from the foul line. Captain Julie Vaikutis is leading the team in rebounds. Pam Sirba, a hustling guard, and Karen Selavka have also helped the Pioneers.
