Graduation Plans Announced

“Rain or shine, graduation will be conducted in parking lot”

By Joan Hardy

Sacred Heart University will hold commencement ceremonies on Saturday, May 19, 1990 at 10:00 a.m. in the South parking lot. Chairman of the Graduation Committee, Alvin Clark, said, “Rain or shine, graduation will be conducted in the parking lot. We have looked into tent rentals, but the cost is prohibitive.”

“Each year there are about 800 people who prefer being indoors,” he continued. “I advise all graduating students who are planning to participate in the graduation ceremony to check the graduation list outside the Hawley Lounge. If there is no ‘p’ (participation) beside the graduate’s name, inform the registrar’s office immediately,” warned Doug Bohn, SHU registrar.

Approximately 500 students from the graduating class are expected to participate. “On graduation morning, students are expected to assemble in the gym at 8:45 a.m. to form the procession line,” Bohn stated. “We request that the graduates be prompt, so that we may proceed in an orderly fashion,” he commented. “Caps and gowns will be distributed on Wed. May 16, from 12:00-7:00 p.m. in the gym,” said Bohn. “And this year, graduates will be able to keep the caps as well as the tassels.”

“Letters will be sent out from the registrar’s office informing the graduates of pertinent facts about the graduation,” concluded Bohn. U.S. Senator John Kerry from Massachusetts will be the commencement speaker at this year’s ceremony. He is a member of the Foreign Relations Committee; the Committee on Commerce, Science and Transportation; the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs and the Small Business Committee.

Kerry is chairman of the Narcotics, Terrorism and International Operations Subcommittee. And he has led a two-year investigation into international drug trafficking and its affect on foreign policy and law enforcement policies.

Special Convocation for Archbishop of San Salvador

By Joan Hardy
News Editor

A special convocation will be held in the University theater on Thursday, May 17, at 1:00 p.m. for His Excellency Arunna River Damas, Archbishop of San Salvador.

Archbishop Rivera Damas became the Acting Archbishop of San Salvador in 1980 following the assassination of Archbishop Oscar Arnulfo Romero as he offered mass.

“Since his elevation to Archbishop in March 1983, Archbishop Rivera Damas has been a fearless proponent of human rights,” stated SHU President, Dr. Anthony Cernera.

Following a week of vengeful and bloody war in which six priests were murdered in Nov. 1989, Archbishop Rivera Damas said, “If this spiral of violence continues, death and destruction will sweep away many, especially those who are of most use to our people.”

“It is a great honor for Sacred Heart University to confer the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, Honoris Causa, upon Archbishop Damas and to have him address this convocation,” said Cernera.

The proposed schedule for Archbishop Rivera Damas’ visit is as follows:

• 9:30 a.m. Meeting with Bishop Edward Egan and Dr. Cernera.
• 10:00 a.m. Meeting with faculty and students in the Community Room of the Campus Center.
• 1:00 a.m. Press conference in Chubb’s Lounge.
• 1:30 p.m. Lunch with special guests.
• 1:30 p.m. Convocation in the SHU Theater.

State and local dignitaries are expected to address the audience, followed by a student officer’s greetings, and welcoming remarks from Bishop Egan.

Presidential Interns Chosen
SHU president Dr. Cernera announced the results of the presidential internship selection process. Named to the internship position for the next academic year were: sophomore Cheryl Perine and juniors Angie Ioannou, Darlene Mendler and Sharon Frank.

Students were selected on the basis of GPA, involvement in university activities, strength of letters of recommendation from faculty, quality of the application essay. During the interview process with the selection committee, students were judged based on poise, articulateness, leadership qualities and commitment to Sacred Heart University. “The committee,” says Dr. Ralph Corrigan, chairman of the selection process, “was extremely pleased with the quality of the applicants in general. The candidates selected for the internship are truly outstanding representatives of our university.”

The presidential interns will be installed in two special internship courses next year. The first course on ethics will be taught by Dr. Cernera in the fall. They will also be working closely with an academic advisor on a mutually agreed upon academic project.

Accidents in SHU Corridors

By Joan Hardy

Five incident reports have been filed this semester with Director of Security, Paul McCormick by people who have fallen on the tiled floors of the south wing or in the hallway in front of the Hawley Lounge.

"I would encourage people to file a report when they have fallen. But because of embarrassment or people feel that they are not seriously injured, they do not inform us," said McCormick.

"Incident reports that are of a serious nature are directed to Vice President of Student Affairs, Henry Krell," he commented.

"Fortunately, no one has been taken out by ambulance from slips or falls since I've been here," commented McCormick.

Staff or faculty members must file a workman's compensation report also, and direct it to Benefits Manager, Soft Kapadia.

Incident reports filed by students or visitors are copied to Edmund Garrick of Human Resources who determines from the facts whether further investigation is necessary.

One staff member who preferred to remain anonymous said, "I fell in the south wing and broke my wrist. I was out of work for three weeks. And it was a very painful experience."

Renée Lee from the registrar's office offered, "I don't really know how I fell. The floor looked newly buffed. I took two steps and I found myself sprawled on the floor in front of Tom Kelly's office."

"I twisted my left ankle which was swollen for three days. And both my wrists were badly bruised," she said.

"I did file an incident report. And I visited my own physician," commented Lee.

She has a good head on her shoulders and is going to bring fresh ideas to the different sections of our paper," said Andy Madison, Sports Editor.

NEWS EDITOR, Joan Hardy commented, "I feel Funda has the vitality and stamina needed to produce a weekly newspaper. I am sure with her sensitivity and bright outlook she will produce a newspaper that the SHU community will enjoy and look forward to reading."

"We've made bold steps with the newspaper and I am extremely proud of my entire staff. After working closely with Funda, I knew that she will continue to produce the quality newspaper we've desperately arrived for this year," concluded Chaves.

Accidents in SHU Corridors

Associate Editor Funda Alp has been named Editor-in-chief for the next academic year. She will take over the position in September leaving her current post as Associate Editor.

Current Editor and junior Alice Chaves decided to take on a position in Public Relations for her senior year. Chaves will remain on the Editorial Board as Editor Emeritus and will concentrate on investigative reporting.

Alp does not plan any major changes for the Spectrum in the upcoming year. "Consistency is one of the most important aspects of a professional newspaper," she said.

According to Alp, attention will need to be covered," she added.

"I wish Funda the best of luck.

Adios, Adieu, Amen

Editors across college campuses have all sat down to write their good-bye editorial. I too say good-bye as editor-in-chief and I am smiling. Smiling, because I leave my position extremely proud. Yesterday, we received notice that we placed first with merit in the American Scholastic Press Association contest for newspaper publications. We also took first place honors for “outstanding news photography” for the two-page photo spread of the SHU Karate Club in November. In a nutshell this means that all our hard work was recognized. Of course, the best praise comes from you, our readers, but it is gratifying that a professional organization has set us apart from all the rest. It’s a great feeling.

So first and foremost I’d like to thank my editorial board and staff. Special thanks to Funda for tolerating the long evenings; to Mike, who wrote, photographed, and never let me down and to Joan, thank you, thank you, thank you — my first born will be named after you.

To Ralph, our adviser, for allowing me to “do my own thing.”

Thank you Tom Kelly, Frank Matthews and Lester. You made it easier.

To Public Relations for their continuous flow of news and photographs. I look forward to extending to you, the reader: some of the things you will read here are bored.

My list can go on forever, we all know that, the week, every week.

So here goes: I really don’t think $13.00 is too much to pay for a yearbook, but I’ve heard many complaints about this. You pay about that for a meal at one of those yuppy restaurants that serve pseudo-real ethnic foods (i.e. nachos, Buffalo Wings, Souvlaki, etc... )and the yearbook will last a lot longer than your meal.

However, the differences between the yearbook and a meal in a restaurant are obvious: you don’t pay for your food in advance and if you are dissatisfied with it you can send it back to the kitchen and ask for something better. Tell me, Prologue staff, how are the chefs planning to make this a meal worth eating? Promises are part of any business but if the customer is not happy, there is some recourse he or she can take. How do we send our yearbook back to the kitchen for a refund if we can’t palate it? The best known business slogan is “Buyer Beware.”

Next topic: earlier this year I mentioned the fact that the cafeteria no longer segregates smoking and non-smoking sections. This means that the cafeteria, in toto, is fair game for smokers to pollute and there is no safe haven for people who do not smoke. I was not the only person who made note of this.

In conclusion, I called this my ‘Hello’ column because the people (who made note of this) are addressed to anyone who reads it, absolutely no redeeming qualities.

Another tobacco-related complaint: people with chewing tobacco or snuff or whatever the hell it is (let’s face it, we’re talking about the same stuff), are just making me sick. When it comes to unattractive habits, you’ve got the bull by the horns.

The one consolation I can take is that the efficiency from that particularly disgusting habit isn’t waf­

What's Going On

By Matt Harlow
Columnist

I'm usually not at a loss for words, but as I sit here in front of the monitor, I am filled with doubt. You see, this is my last column. I graduate in May. To you who liked my column, I appreciate your feedback. To those who didn't, thanks for reading it anyway.

My doubt is centered on my column. So much to talk about, yet my editor refused to give me a whole page to spew. My column must follow a train of thought, and to Dr. Hutvagner and Dr. Black, thanks for putting up with my tales of woe. To the people from the Financial Aid office, thank you for trying to get me out, despite my financial deadlock. And to Dr. Cernera, I thank you for having the wisdom to keep the good people around you. They made all the difference.

I could say that too, but it would sound like I was lying through my teeth. I could talk about the task of the underclassmen, who are going to have to deal with several changes with the school. Dorms are going up, SHU is getting new sports programs. Departments are becoming streamlined. And of course, tuition is going up. All of these, with the exception of the latter, are designed to help boost enrollment.

It is up to the incoming freshmen and sophomores to shoulder the burden of these changes. I could talk about this, too, but it would sound like I was patronizing. I could talk about all of us in general, about how the world is changing. Communism is beginning to fall throughout the world. People are starting to wake up to the horror of drugs and violence, and are fighting to make a change. In all areas of injustice we are seeing the 60s activism come back especially in the area of the environment. Though the Earth Day special on ABC was corny, it threw out some hard hitting facts. We won't get a second chance on life once Earth is gone. We are committing planet matricide and people should be saying "ENOUGH!" But the question remains: Are we too late? As I look into the eyes of my three-year-old niece, I say no.

Sure, I could say something like this, but it would sound like a campaign speech. I could even thank some of the administrators (notice how I said some) who shed light on my blacklist problem. Your personal confidence I needed on the debate team. And Piotr Gzowski. Thanks for cracking my protective shell and getting to the "heart of the light" inside. And thanks to all those others among you who had to put up with my myriad of excuses, fabrications and outright lies I used to cover my stupidity. The only person I was hurting was myself and I had a feeling you knew that.

Yeah, I could thank all those teachers, but it would sound too mushy. I could even thank some of the administrators (notice how I said some) who shed light on my blacklist problem. Your personal confidence I needed on the debate team. And Piotr Gzowski. Thanks for cracking my protective shell and getting to the "heart of the light" inside. And thanks to all those others among you who had to put up with my myriad of excuses, fabrications and outright lies I used to cover my stupidity. The only person I was hurting was myself and I had a feeling you knew that.

Society's Means vs. Purpose

by Anthony J. Cernera, Ph.D.

Sunday's Earth Day activities reminded me of a gentler time for this planet. A time when a child's mind was filled with ingenuous, but certainly not poisonous, a time when rivers quenched the thirst; a time when beaches sparkled with miles of unblemished sand. Proper disposal of garbage was a matter of science. People actually thought of those who would follow them in this world.

Today our world is almost consumed by garbage. Our beaches, mountains, rivers and cities are strewn with trash. It is not uncommon to find a beer bottle or a mountain peak, the shattered glass remnants of a whisky bottle in a remote wilderness area or the tattered, unsightly remains of a plastic bag stubbornly clinging to a tree. In pristine settings, garbage is offensive, obtrusive, in cities it is pervasive, inedible. There is no escaping our modern-day trashy heritage.

It is like kudzu, the fast growing vine, we've let it climb down South in the middle of this century to help combat soil erosion. But our agriculturists failed to realize the insipid nature of this Japanese plant. When left to its own devices, it grows everywhere—even consumes abandoned houses, automobiles and other structures in its path.

Our garbage situation is much like that. It is out of control and the only way to stop it is to join together and combat it. But this is not just a physical change, it is a moral one, too. We must each think of the consequence of one misplaced piece of trash—whether a clear piece of cellophane or the tiniest speck of foil. We simply must not let it fall upon the earth.

The philosopher E.F. Schumacher said it best when he said, "We're a society that's rich in means and poor in purpose." He recognized the flagrant abuses we wage upon the Earth and all that is natural. And he derided them. "We are not using the facilities the Creator has put at our disposal for the purposes of attaining our end," Schumacher wrote. "We don't even think about what our end is. We're using things simply because they're here. Our engineers and scientists produced something we could use, so we must use it."

After wrestling with these thoughts, Schumacher stressed that we as people of conscience should consider from the bottom of our hearts. "After all, everything we talk about should be oriented to, and derived from, an answer to the question, "Why are we here in the world anyhow?"

It is a question that our graduating seniors should take with them as they become students of life and a question that all of us should embrace and ponder throughout this time here on this Earth. If we are not accountable to each other, to our environment, to our world, then we will have no world.

Farewell Message From SG President John Bordeau

Dear Sacred Heart:

As I say goodbye to Sacred Heart, I want to say thank you to the students. Thank you for electing me and thank you for saying you would re-elect me if I wasn't graduating in the Spectrum questions section. I have had a great time and have learned a lot. But even more importantly, together we've done some good things for Sacred Heart.

We successfully reversed two policies that were unfair to students. Dr. Cernera and the faculty senate worked with us to stop the "blacklist" policy and change the new rules governing participation in the graduating ceremony.

We also made sure a proposal to institute minus grading would not negatively affect our GPA. We also passed a new constitution, secured a conference room and made the students' handbook a little more efficient and order and accountable deliberate body.

Across the campus, we created an atmosphere that permitted traditionally "unrepresented" clubs to make incredible comebacks in membership and activity. Thanks to the hard work of programming board chairman, Rob Cottle, we broke attendance records at almost every student event. SHU's social life has regained its momentum and we all had a part in it.

There are some people who deserve to be thanked individually for this year's work. Jennifer Lee, senior class president of 1990, deserves credit for doing a job that goes unnoticed. She has done an excellent job of organizing senior week. Thank you Robin Pothansky for all your work including the planning of senior week. She has been an outstanding chairperson of organizing senior week.

He started as my vice president and my good friend. He has been a great second-in-command and will make a fine president. Finally, thank you Tom Kelly. You are the guiding voice of student life here. I could not have done this job without you.

I have enjoyed being your student government president and I would recommend the job to anyone. I have made a lot of friends and I am pleased that most of you are happy with my performance. Thank you, student government representatives—we made progress by working together. But it was Rob Cottle who probably summed up best what I will be remembered for. The other day he said "You and that damn suit."

Thank you, John Bordeau
SG President

Spectrum Questionnaire Results

To the SHU Community:

Earlier this month we asked students to fill out our year-end questionnaire. We'd like to thank all the SHU students for their enthusiastic response. We decided to print the majority of the responses to the final question because we felt that they spoke louder than any editorial we could print. We also listed some interesting answers to several of the other questions. Finally, we would like our readers to clearly understand that this questionnaire is not scientific and was created for entertainment purposes.

We have engaged the master plan architect who will be showing us building designs in June. And by September, we should have things to show the community,” he continued.

TAC Associates from Massachusetts will be the master plan architects in affiliation with Bridgeport-based architects, Kaspar Associates.

“We are monitoring our course and I see no fundamental alterations needed in the plans. And we are dealing with priorities,” he stated.

“Our emphasis is on enrollment this year. Although 10% fewer students took SATs this year compared to last year, at this point, I expect us to reach our goal in enrollment by the end of the period,” commented Cemera.

“Since we are a tuition-dependent institution, our priorities are in enrollment and recruitment. There is no question about a balanced budget this year. Our finances are secured, and we have a financial reserve built up,” he added.

“In the third year of the plan, there will be a faculty emphasis, plus addressing the need for library resources,” Cemera continued.

One of the goals of the Strategic Plan is to enhance the quality of student life to support the recruitment and retention of qualified students.

To that end, SHU has added three additional sports to the athletic program this semester. They are Division III football, lacrosse, and women’s soccer.

In addition, there is the development of a residential life program. The fall semester of 1990 will see the opening of a SHU dormitory at Parkridge on Park Avenue in Bridgeport.

“The Strategic Plan Committee continues to meet every two weeks to redefine and clarify the plan,” said Cemera.

“We must look to the outside of the University to revitalize circumstances that could bring change to the Strategic Plan,” he added.

“I sense a real vitality in the University and I sense a very bright future,” stated Cemera.

Continuing Education Program Grows

By Joan Hardy

The Continuing Education Program has evolved into the Office of Graduate Studies and Continuing Education this year with the emphasis on growth and development.

“We have already changed in many ways since I came to Sacred Heart University in July, 1989,” said Dr. Richard E. Farmer, director of Graduate Studies/Continuing Ed.

“All adult education programs, both part-time and graduate level, students, plus non-credit courses are contained in one administrative section,” he continued.

“She helps in developing academic programs and services targeted for adults,” commented Farmer.

“And we want Sacred Heart to be viewed as a center for adult higher education in the State of Connecticut,” he said.

Compared to other colleges in the State, excluding state-funded universities, SHU ranks second in part-time enrollment. With approximately 2200 students, Sacred Heart is outnumbered only by the University of New Haven with approximately 2200 students.

The University of Bridgeport has a part-time enrollment of slightly under 1000, Fairfield University about 1000, and the University of Hartford around 1600.

“I would like to see us number one in the State of Connecticut in the independent college sector,” commented Farmer.

“We are number two and we try harder,” he said.

Addressing future developments, Farmer said, “During the summer, we will be discussing weekend college for adults, and accelerated programs for undergraduates in Business Administration.”

“There is a potential for these areas. Some students are free to attend classes only on weekends. And people who are just beginning college on a part-time basis, and facing many years of study might be interested in an accelerated curriculum,” he commented.

“It would be like summer school all year round in an accelerated program,” stated Farmer.

Creation of SHU Learning Society

Sacred Heart University Learning Society is a membership driven organization sponsored by Graduate Studies and Continuing Education-Life Long Learning.

The Learning Society will be based in the Greenwich-Stamford area, and designed for adults.

According to Farmer, “This will help us establish visibility in that region.”

By June, SHU will have a plan for Life Long Learning.

“The purpose of the Society is to provide a structured opportunity to fulfill lifelong learning needs,” commented Brady.

The focus of the Society is to learn, grow, feel, experience and explore,” he continued.

Activities will include lectures, group discussions, film series, field trips, etc.

“If this is successful, we may establish one on the Sacred Heart campus,” said Farmer.

Center for Excellence in Management

“This fall we will implement a Center for Excellence in Management,” stated Farmer.

“These skill enhancement programs will be non-credit courses. It will serve as a vehicle to do all kinds of management training for business, industry, and government,” he commented.

“Many companies are in need of these skill enhancement programs and are unable to accommodate their employees at the business sites,” stated Brady.
Prologue Gives Ultimatum

By Funda Alp
Associate Editor

Student Government addressed the Prologue's concerns for the low number of yearbook orders they have received for the 1990 yearbook, at an evening meeting, Tuesday, April 24th. A decision was finalized to order no more than the number of yearbooks paid for by students by the May 8 deadline.

Prologue established the precedent, as was stated in a letter to all eligible students early this year, that only the number of yearbooks paid for by students will be offered. To date, Prologue has received 92 paid orders for the yearbook.

At the meeting, Thomas Kelly, Prologue advisor, raised the question of whether or not extra yearbooks will be ordered. If a yearbook order is not placed and paid for by the May 8 deadline, there will be no alternative method of acquiring a yearbook. "People should know that if they don't pay $33, they won't get a yearbook. It was the consensus of SG that we keep the present policy," stated SG president John Beordeo.

To generate more interest and orders for the Prologue, a publicity drive will begin on Monday, April 30 which will last through the final deadline, Tuesday, May 8. According to Prologue co-editor Kristen Wittmer, letters will be sent out to all eligible students and posters will be hung around school to alert students of this deadline. "I'm disappointed with the lack of student interest because this yearbook will be something we can all be proud of," added Wittmer.

She added, "I encourage everyone to go to the events and I promise they will have a great time."

Against Illiteracy

Sacred Heart University hosted a free six-hour training session for 30 volunteer reading tutors on Saturday, April 7.

Joseph Celetano, a 69 year-old resident of Bridgeport and history major at SHU, spearheaded the drive to establish a tutorial program for illiterate adults.

"I feel that illiteracy is a very serious problem in our nation that must be addressed. Approximately 23,000 adults in the city of Bridgeport cannot read," explained Celetano.

He initially proposed his tutorial idea to John Fabrizi, coordinator of adult literacy services in Bridgeport. This led to the participation of Patricia Aquila, continuing education coordinator at SHU.

The program is sponsored by the Bridgeport Board of Education's Adult Education Program in conjunction with SHU's Continuing Education Council.

"By providing our facilities, we felt students might feel more comfortable coming to a university," said Aquila. "It's a safe environment. And I believe there are no literacy programs in the north end of Bridgeport," she continued.

"We've had an overwhelming response from people who want to be volunteer tutors," said Fabrizi. "Unfortunately, we only had room for 25 people in the program, but we've expanded it to 30."

"I am delighted with this new program, which is geared to the low-level reader to fifth grade," he continued.

Immediately after Easter, tutors began working in small groups or on a one-to-one basis for two hours weekly with illiterate adults drawn from inner-city Bridgeport. The program is projected to last from 12-26 weeks.

According to Celetano, "We did not advertise. People who wanted to attend our program have learned about us by word of mouth."

He explained, "Potential students go to the Literacy Services Department at the Hi Ho Center in Bridgeport, where they are evaluated. From this evaluation, tutors are advised where the students should start in the program."

Celetano credited both the SHU Continuing Education Council, and Dean of Graduate Studies/Continuing Ed, Dr. James Farner, "for being extremely helpful in establishing this literacy program at Sacred Heart University."

"He concluded, "I wanted to work with the community. I wanted to do something to help."

Antigone: View of Eastern Europe Today

By JoAnn Mariani
Contributing Editor

Piotr Gzowski's contemporary adaptation of Sophocles' tragedy Antigone is a bleak, disturbing allegory of the contemporary situation in Eastern Europe. The conflict of church state, of tyranny, and senseless punishment are all still relevant today.

The cast was composed of professional actors from the Humanities Touring Group (which Gzowski founded) and SHU students, especially the CAZTI Acting Class. The cast was excellent, and the student performers equalled the pros.

Gzowski studied five different translations of the drama while he was adapting the script. He divided the lines that were performed by the Chorus among extras who portrayed townspeople and soldiers. Many of Creon's lines were transferred to a new role, a chief of police who is more dictatorial than Creon himself.

The play is emotionally draining, and all the more disturbing because it is applicable to the European situation today. "Lithuania, Estonia and Rumania are dealing with these issues now," says Gzowski.

Despite breakthroughs in Germany, Czechoslovakia, much of Eastern Europe is still under fascist rule. He does not see an end of the oppression in the near future, and that view is expressed in the final scene—as the broken, defeated Creon is led off the stage, and the tyrannical police chief steps into the role of leader, and the cycle of despot after despot continues.

Despite its bleakness, Antigone has considerable artistic merit. Everything works together—the sparse, utilitarian scenery, the ominous score, and the Eastern European costume all combine to create an atmosphere that seems fitting for the tragedy. The theme of suppression and oppression of the citizen and the iron-handed rule of the dictator came across loud and clear. Antigone is not an hour and a half of characters speewing lines. Brought into a modern context, Sophocles' work is a relevant, chilling view of the social and political climate of Eastern Europe.

WWPT—One Year Later

By Drew Cucuzza
A & E Editor

It's been a year of birth pangs for WWPT 90.3 FM, Sacred Heart's student run station. Last summer, the student station, then known as WSXR, signed a one-year broadcasting union with WWPT and Staples High School in Westport, CT. Under the agreement, WSHU would supply programming to turn WWPT into a 24-hour-a-day operation. Sacred Heart would supply student interns to train the station's student workers, hire a general manager (George Lombardi), and maintain the station.

SHU students would broadcast from a 3 a.m. to 3 p.m.

"We'd like to keep the station growing the way it has been."

According to George Lombardi, WSHU general manager, there was some friction early on between SHU and Staples students. Said Lombardi, "each group expected certain things from each other." He added that many of the nighttime slots hosted by SHU students were taken over by Staples students my mid fall.

But other problems arose. In January, student government circulated a survey to students asking them to evaluate and give input about the student run station. Results, which were printed in the Feb. 1 issue of Spectrum, showed that out of approximately 117 students surveyed, 54 were unaware that the station could be picked up on FM radio. 54 felt that they were not getting their money's worth, 62 felt that the station was not responsive to their taste in music, and 75 students felt that the station rarely promoted or benefited the student. Overall, 52 students rated the station's performance as good.

According to Tom Kelly, director of student activities, the poll was conducted to address three major issues, the sound quality in the cafeteria, the fact that the music was "frequently" turned off, and that the station did not promote SHU activities.

In response, the station installed the speakers in the cafeteria.

Aaron Gonski founded SHU Radio in 1973 with three students. In 1981, the station was abandoned by the university and became a student run station. Last summer, additional maintenance costs, as well as loaning them audio equipment, was conducted to address three promotions. They distributed flyers around the school to promote the station and staged two contests, one to create a logo for the station and another to discover listener tastes. The latter contest would give $100 worth of music related merchandise to the 100th survey turned in. Unfortunately, only 30 surveys were received so the winner was picked on the merit of her suggestion. The station also purchased a volume control for the cafeteria.

On Feb. 6, Student Government froze the balance of WWPT's funds ($2812.50) until the station did three things. The station had to conduct a music survey regarding student preferences for the station, had to consult the administration about volume and sound quality in the cafeteria, and had to collect information about its tower relocation for a stronger signal.

On March 20, Student Government unfroze the station's funds, but Lombardi says, "They basically said the station is a learning experience for a few students and should not be funded from the student activity fee."

Recently, the station shut down when WWPT's transmitter broke down, but should be back on the air with WSHU's old transmitter by the time you read this.

Said Lombardi, "Personnel and programming wise, we have resolved our problems. The tough part is when it comes to sign with WWPT I don't know who will fund it. We originally hoped the Westport Board of Education was going to put up additional capital, but budget cuts prevented that. As of the moment, there is no funding after July 1, though the school might consider paying part of it and fundraising and underwriting are being considered. Realistically, we need $6000 for the year."

The station's power increase and antenna height is also being considered by the Westport Planning and Zoning Board.

Said outgoing station manager Darius Nemickas, "Well like to keep the station growing the way it has been. Communications are open between PT and SHU."

Elections for positions on the station will be held in May.

In case you have not noticed yet Sacred Heart University is in the process off drastic change. The recent announcement of plant renovations, dorms, and three new athletic teams are all part of the master plan for SHU. Amidst all the propositions and blueprints, one part of the University's reconstruction has already been completed—The Charles Plohn Gallery.

The gallery opened its doors to the SHU community and general public on Oct. 1, 1989 with a ribbon cutting ceremony which included a one-day Gala and Art Sale and an exhibition of the "Early Works from the Plohn Collection" by noted Daniel E. Greene.

Greene is known internationally for his portraits, intricate still-lifes and figure compositions. His works are included in over 40 private and public collections, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

Since its opening seven months ago, gallery Director Sophia Gevas has been constantly organizing exhibits and lectures to compliment exhibits. In this the first year for the gallery there have been several interesting events. Some of which include arts from students and faculty.

For the first time the student art show was held in the gallery rather than in its previous show place the Hawley Lounge. The art show was part of a student art competition which consisted of five categories in which art students were able to enter their works of art. The winners were as follows: Advanced II illustration: Eileen O'Donnell.

"I think this year has been exciting and we are still in process of development." said Gevas.

The Faculty Art show featured the creative works of a dozen faculty members including Tom Anastasio, Frank Bramble, Jack O'Grady, Susan Granger, Ted Gutierra, Robert Capocciello, Rosemary Ford and others.

SHU alumna Joseph Sia also exhibited some of his photographs from the Woodstock music festival. Some of the photos included pictures of Jimi Hendrix, Joe Cocker, and Mick Jagger. The exhibit was opened with a screening of the documentary film Woodstock and a lecture on the rock festival by SHU Professors Rebecca Abbott, Robin McCallister and Paul Siff. Currently on display is an exhibit of New York sculptor Thomas McAnulty. The exhibit examines the process of the artist by showing sculptures and drawings from his last three series of work. Everyday objects occupy austere architectural niches traditionally for heroic effigies in this exhibition.

Commenting on the first year of the gallery Gevas said, "I think this year has been a very exciting year, and we are still in the process of development. We have also been able to put together three lectures associated with the exhibits, to expand our programming."

As for the future of the Plohn Gallery, Gevas is planning for six shows next year. One or two of which will be theme shows and possibly a fund raiser associated with one of the exhibits.

Development of a gallery membership is already underway. For a yet undetermined small fee students and others will be able to become members of the gallery.

The Charles Plohn Gallery is located in the academic building. Gallery hours are noon to 8 p.m., Monday through Thursday.

SHU had an "extremely successful" 89-90 season, according to manager Fred Sailer, and two musical anthologies were produced in the theater.

The curtain went up on Oct. 11 with the musical fantasy "Man of La Mancha," adapted from Miguel de Cervantes' novel Don Quixote. Veteran actor Ed Bryce headed the cast of professional and amateur actors, with the pros taking the secondary parts. Sailer claimed the show was "a golden opportunity to get any real talent on stage," but I didn't see much of it. I didn't see much of it. The production was extraor­ dinary; I expect it to be even more successful than 'The Greeks.'

The concept behind the production was "the dream of a family-type play."

The season closed out with "The Greeks: In the Beginning" March 18-April 1. The medley of Rodgers and Hammerstein tunes was a delight to anyone who has ever hummed along to the hits of "South Pacific," "Oklahoma," "The King and I" and "Carousel."

The six-member cast was attractive and competent. The scenery was minimal, so the focus was on the story. I thought the time machine that was brought on stage was a bit "odd," but it was probably a fund raiser associated with the exhibit.

"We simply need to make the time more conducive to their schedules. The production team (Andrew Anweiler, music composition; Linda Glass, scen design; Nikila Cole, choreography; Ed Corfini, lighting design) is certainly ready for it, and I'm certain that this show is going to be extremely impressive."

"The Greeks: In the Beginning" is still scheduled to run this fall, and the show will be at Sacred Heart University in the Spring.

"The concept behind the production at Sacred Heart is to bring back the full-houses we enjoyed for "The Greeks."

"The simple reason for the change of dates is that the end of May was too late in the year for hundreds of students who wanted to come, yet that was the only time we could get a SHU Theatre," said the director, Claude McNeal.

"The production will be extraordinarily exciting, and it is ready to go with a new music score, choreography, sets, directorial concepts, etc. I expect it to be even more successful than 'The Greeks.'"

I added Piotr Gzowski, the producer. "The concept behind the production at Sacred Heart is to bring back the full-houses we enjoyed for "The Greeks."

Pioneers ranked 18th

Pioneers, senior Craig Feinstein went 2-4 with an RBI double, and junior Kevin Gill also added two hits, and senior Dave Garthwait and junior Joe Escobar had RBIs. In the nightcap, the Pioneers lost 9-8 in eight innings. Sophomore Tim Ward took the loss for Sacred Heart evening his record off at 1-1. Ward came in relief of starter Pete Frankovitch in the bottom of the seventh and the winning run scored in the bottom of the eighth on a throwing error.

Last Wednesday, the Pioneers hosted the second ranked team in the nation, the University of New Haven, in a doubleheader. The Pioneers won the opener by a score of 4-0. Licursi earned the victory. In going the distance, Licursi allowed only three hits, walked two, and struck out eight. It was also the first time in 171 regular season sports contests that New Haven was shut out, back in 1982. Southern Connecticut shut the New Haven Chargers out 2-0. Sacred Heart scored the only run they would need in the bottom of the second when with one out, sophomore Al Carrara, playing in his first game in over three weeks because of a broken collarbone, singled, Bruno followed with a single, and with two outs, Escobar singled scoring Carrara to give the Pioneers a 1-0 lead. Also hit a two run homer in the bottom of the fourth. In the nightcap, the Chargers bounced back and won the game by a score of 6-2. Dave Wilson took the loss for Sacred Heart. Offensively for Sacred Heart, Feinstein and Martin had 4 RBIs in the bottom of the sixth.

Pioneer Hits: After dropping the second game to Lowell on Sunday, Martin and Licursi are looking for at least one more league loss by New Haven and Lowell to force a three team playoff for the NECC championship, and the automatic bid to the NCAA regional tournament. The Pioneers can also earn an at large bid by winning the ECAC tournament if invited.

1989-90 ALL STAR TEAM

Shoop Sports Review & Preview

Women's Cross Country

The Sacred Heart Lady Pioneer Cross Country team continues their long battle toward building a top notch cross country program by competing in various events in Connecticut and New York led by Elaine Agosti and Emily Belamonte. Coach Adolph Ellis states, "we should at least have four or five cross country runners next year. We should be more competitive. Emily Belamonte was a pleasant surprise for the program and with a competitive year under her belt, she should be that much better.

Men's Soccer

Coming off a successful 9-9-1, coach Joe McGuigan feels he has the strongest nucleus of returning talent in his eight year career at Sacred Heart. These key veterans include forth Daniel DosSantos, Carlos Oliveira, and Walter Pons, and midfielders Marco Sanchez and Allan Zentiga. The returning senior goaltender is Dino Scaccia. Mcguigan feels, "this team should be good enough to make the NECC tournament (4 teams) and if successful there, then SHU soccer could receive an NCAA bid at season's end."

Women's Volleyball

The Sacred Heart Women's Volleyball team ended up with a moderate season, winning 19 of their 34 games. The Pioneers will lose key player, Diane Nichols, who was a key contributor offensively and defensively to the squad. Coach Elizabeth Luckie commented, "we have a very solid nucleus returning, all of which have the potential to play exceptionally well. I'm looking to recruit a few more players who are going to be able to produce right away." The Pioneers have seven returning players: April King, Donna Charchenko, Jennifer Dankolch, Maria Myers, Vicki Kennedy, Lori Bogue, and Maria Cavallero.

Men's Basketball

A 15-14 record for many teams can be viewed as a success, but when it concerns the Sacred Heart Pioneers, this is looked upon as a disappointment. Bright spots included the play of captain Sean Williams, junior Todd Williams and NECC Freshman of the Year Darrin Robinson. Inconsistent play was this team's downfall. Coach Dave Bike noted, "next year we must make a greater commitment and with a good group of returning players which will represent our foundation as well as a key recruit or two, we will have the potential to have a decent season. We must recognize that we are in a tough league and these things occur this may put us over the hump."

Women's Basketball

The Sacred Heart Women's Basketball could receive an NCAA bid at season's end." The Pioneers have seven returning players, which we do not concern the Sacred Heart."

Diane was selected by Spectrum as women's athlete of the year because she excelled in every sport that she has participated in at Sacred Heart. In volleyball, Diane was named First team All-NECC in 1988. She won the 1989-90 Most Outstanding Player during his basketball season. Her performance in softball was also second to none. After 22 games this season, Diane was hitting .395. Coach Elizabeth Luckie said, "she has been a great leader in every sense of the word. She has gone to be hard to replace in all three sports. She has had a great year and is deserving of the award."

Diane has been thinking of receiving the award. "It is an honor to be recognized for these accomplishments."
Baseball Aims for Playoffs

Playing Depend on how they do the rest of season

The Sacred Heart Baseball team owns a record of 17-12 and 6-2 in the NECC after a 2-3 week. The Pioneers, the 18th ranked team in the nation on the most recent poll, split doubleheaders with the University of New Haven, the second ranked team in the nation, and the University of Lowell, another NECC powerhouse.

Coach Nick Giaquinto said of the team goals for the rest of the season, "I think the team goal should to be continue to elevate our level of play to remain in contention for the playoffs." Giaquinto went on to say about the team's chances for reaching the playoffs, "It will depend on how we do the rest of the season."

This past Sunday, SHU traveled to Lowell, Massachusetts to take on the University of Lowell. The Pioneers won the first game 4-2 behind the pitching of junior Rich Licursi who now owns a record of 10-1. The six win ties him for most wins in a season also shared by Jeff Carino in 1978. Licursi went the distance allowing two runs, four hits, three walks, and six strikeouts. Offensively for the Pioneers, the Lady Pioneers Keep Winning..."Final four is definitely in sight.”

Dave Wilson attempts a pick off in a 6-2 loss to New Haven last Wednesday. The Pioneers won the first contest, 4-0 on a Rich Licursi shutout.
