Freshman elections scheduled

Today marks the start of the annual Freshman Elections proceedings. It is a time of tremendous enthusiasm, involvement, and school spirit shared by both freshmen and upperclassmen alike. Amid the flurry of campaign posters and slogans, the University Community unites to welcome its newest student leaders.

The offices available to full-time freshmen are as follows:

Student Government: 5 Freshman Representatives.

Freshman Class Office: Class President, Vice President, Secretary, Treasurer

Student Government is the powerful decision-making body governing student affairs. With an annual budget of $100,000 (derived from the $45 activity fee), Student Government is responsible for funding, either partially or totally, student services at the University.

This includes things such as the Spectrum newspaper, Prologue Yearbook, extra-curricular activities, admission to sporting events, and clubs and organizations. Student Government works for the entire student body, reviewing current programs and policies, and making recommendations to improve student life at SHU. In addition, they sponsor many programs of their own through the Programming Board, which coordinates all the activities on Campus.

Papal document affirms principles, promotes dialogue

By Jennifer Barbin
Staff Writer

The Vatican released Pope John Paul II's apostolic constitution on Catholic universities titled "Ex Corde Ecclesiae" (from the Heart of the Church) on Sept. 25, 1990.

"My reactions are very positive," says Sacred Heart University President Anthony Cernera. "The document reflects the fruit of dialogue."

The document is divided into two parts, the first explaining Catholic universities' identity and mission, the second outlining general norms.

Sister Ann-Louise Nadeau, counselor at Sacred Heart University says, "The tone is that of dialogue and respect for academic freedom of higher education and a respect for the integrity of the Catholic Church." Nadeau believes that the document can serve "as a starting point for discussion among the academic community."

"It is the university that has primary responsibility for explicating its Catholic character," said Ursaline Sister Alice Gallin, executive director of the Association of Catholic Colleges and Universities, in a statement issued Sept. 24, 1990.

"Specific implementation is left to the regional and local levels where close collaboration between universities and church authorities is urged."

The Apostolic Constitution and SHU

The Vatican's apostolic constitution serves as a reference point for discussion and is an affirmation of certain principles. As Cernera says, it is "not a list of do's and don'ts," but is "something we ought to take seriously."

The new constitution does contain some problematic statements. One of the norms states, "In order not to endanger the Catholic identity of the university or institute of higher studies, the number of non-Catholic teachers should not be allowed to constitute a majority within the institution which is and must remain Catholic."

Academic Vice President and Provost, Thomas J. Trebon considers that statement "somewhat distant in tone from the rest of the document." Potential SHU faculty members are not asked to reveal their religious affiliation. "By law, practice, and nature," says Trebon, "we do not, must not, will not discriminate." He believes those who are not Catholic add a

Changes at WWPT for new year

By Ritch Flynn

SHU student radio station WWPT is making drastic changes in operations for the new year in order to gain wider appeal among the student body.

Last year the station was plagued with organizational and technical difficulties. "We've been training and getting our DJ's licensed" said station manager George Lombardi. It was helter-skelter here last year because of lack of training. We are doing our best to keep that from happening again," Lombardi said.

The station operates in conjunction with Staples High School in Westport. "We had a lot of communication problems with them last year," Lombardi told the Spectrum, "we were not [synchronised] and Staples kept going on the air while we were still broadcasting. Mark Nee has been going over there a few times each week so that we will not have that problem this year."

Lombardi also told the Spectrum that the disc-jockeys are more disciplined this year, reducing the instances of personality conflicts with student government that abounded last year.

The station still has some technical difficulties to contend with. Increasing the power of transmissions remains under debate in Westport Town Hall. The stations transmissions have been interfering with the Westport Fire Dept. Due to this fact the town is currently opposing an increase in power for the radio station. The station went off the air briefly during the week of October 7-13th at the request of the Westport Fire Dept. because of interference.

Student and faculty have recently criticized the volume level of the station in the cafeteria. Lombardi told the Spectrum that the problem lies in master volume control and a monitoring system in need of improvement.

"We set the volume level in the morning and monitor the levels from Jefferson House, but the noise level of the students in the cafeteria influences the volume [output]. The volume can be increased or decreased from either Jefferson House or from a small closet across from the cafeteria. "We really need to develop a better feedback system for volume control," Lombardi said. "We are not yet 100%, but we are getting there and we believe that by the [spring semester] things around here will be a breeze."

SHU's mission and Catholic character

According to Sacred Heart's mission statement, the university is defined as a "co-educational, independent institution of higher learning in the Catholic intellectual tradition." It continues to explain that "it exemplifies in its life the Judeo-Christian values of the God-given freedom and dignity of every human person."

From its founding on the former site of Notre Dame high school in 1963 by the Most Reverend Walter W. Curtis, second bishop of the Diocese of Bridgeport, Sacred Heart was to reflect the ecumenical spirit of post Vatican II. It was unique because it was to be staffed primarily by lay people. As Academic Vice President and Provost notes, "SHU was ahead of its time because of the role of the laity. We ought to feel good about our position."

However, SHU's position as a non-sectarian institution of higher learning was legally challenged in 1967 when former SHU President William Conley applied for and received government funds to construct the library. Sacred Heart University, Albertus Magnus College, Fairfield University, and Annhurst College were litigants in the Connecticut Colleges case, ultimately known as Tilton v. Richardson. The plaintiffs argued that the award of government funds to these church affiliated universities was a violation of the provision in the First Amendment for the separation of church and state.

On June 28, 1971, the U.S. Supreme Court decided in favor of Nursing field focus of lecture series

The Sacred Heart University Mu Delta chapter of the international honor society of nursing, Sigma Theta Tau, is holding "A Distinguished Lecture Series" on Thursday, November 1, from 12:30 p.m. to 4:15 p.m. in the Schine Auditorium of the Library.

The program will feature two guest speakers: Dorothy Brooton, Ph.D., FAAN, professor of the University of Pennsylvania School of Nursing and senior fellow at the Leonard Davis Institute of Health Economics and Juanita Kirkland Hunter, R.N., Ed.D., clinical assistant professor of nursing at the State University of New York at Buffalo.

Brooton will speak on "Research as Priority: It's Time for Revolution," and Hunter's subject will be "Nursing Tomorrow: Preparation Today."

The fee for Mu Delta members is $20; non-members $25. Advanced registration is requested. For further information, contact 371-7715.

Edwin Meese to speak at SHU

Former attorney general Edwin Meese will give a public lecture, "The Bill of Rights and Judicial Interpretation," on Thursday, Nov. 8 in Sacred Heart University's Schine Auditorium, beginning at 7:30 p.m. Admission is free.

Meese, who served as the nation's 75th Attorney General from February 1985 to August 1988, now lectures, writes and consults on a variety of subjects. He holds the position of distinguished fellow with the Heritage Foundation, a Washington-based public policy research and education institution.

For more information, contact Dr. Gary Rose at Sacred Heart University, 371-7745.

Last Chance, Last Two

The Sacred Heart University media department will present their last two movie features this month. They are:

Saturday, November 3

Catholic education in our new world

By Chris Nicholson

Reverend James Hug, S.J., director of the Center of Concern in Washington D.C., recently delivered a speech at Sacred Heart regarding the goals of Catholic universities in times of drastic economic change. It was the third lecture in the annual Presidential Lecture Series.

The speech, titled "Education for a World Coming Apart: The Revolutionary Mission of Catholic Higher Education in the 1990's," focused on the challenges of an economic revolution, and what Catholic universities can do to guide society safely through the changes.

Hug pointed out that Catholic universities must educate students to view economy from the standpoint of the impoverished, not the middle class. "There is no neutral ground," he said. "Catholic universities need to reflect the values of the reign of God."

Hug explained how the last 50 years has wrought "dramatic changes" in the world. Events in the United States were zeroed in on, such as civil rights movements, the Vietnam War, the Watergate scandal, and fluctuating oil prices, which changed America's dependency on foreign nations. All of this sparked "a restructuring of U.S. and world economy," he said.

Now, in the 90's the United States faces the large task of reversing the immediate effects of the economic revolution: the national debt has exploded, the upper class is becoming wealthier while the number of impoverished grow, and racism is again on the rise. Hug commented, "If we don't face the challenges of the 90's, they will continue to grow and worsen."

Hug says education has to change. In an interview after the speech he criticized the inner city school system for perpetuating the problem. "The schools are horrible, absolutely falling apart. Kids are being structured directly into poverty for life," he said.

Hug questioned Sacred Heart's goals, and asked whether the university is doing what it should to help correct the problem. He said the administration should ask: "What are we as an institution of higher education committed to? What is the sin of this institution? What are we being called to?"

Hug also stated that the only way to arrive at an answer is "to analyze, focusing on reality; search for constructive solutions. We have to project images of hope."

Dr. Anthony Cernera, president of SHU, promised that Hug's words "won't stop here today." After the lecture he said the Strategic Action Committee would be discussing the lecture's questions with Hug. "I want to talk with him. I also want to transcribe the lecture and get it out into the university for discussion," he said. "I invited him here for precisely the challenging words he gave us."

Study tour programs offered

By Cynthia Lagaris
Staff Writer

Numerous international study programs are sponsored by the education department at Sacred Heart University titled, "The Incredible Shrinking World."

Dr. Barry Herman, director of graduate programs in education, stresses the advantages of global studies. "Traveling to other countries is a rewarding experience for all participants involved," says Herman.

"Learning usually takes place within the four walls of a classroom, but it can also take place in such nations as Great Britain, Soviet Union, Italy and other countries," says Herman. "As educators we need to enrich our lives with first-hand experiences of visiting other countries, meeting new people and seeing places we only read about," he added.

The University offers students the opportunity to earn three graduate or undergraduate credits and 3.6 C.E.U. or audit credits through global education tours to other countries.

The study tours currently offered include: The Fourth Annual Caribbean Seminar Tour to Cuba, from Dec. 26, 1990 to Jan. 3, 1991; the Third Annual Russian Odyssey Seminar Trip, Feb. 9-17, 1991; the Imperial Cities of Morocco Study Tour, Feb. 9-16, 1991; the Holy Land and Israel Seminar Trip, Feb. 8-16, 1991; the Early Childhood Study Trip of Reggio Emilia, Italy, April 12-21, 1991; the Second Annual Magic of Poland Study Tour, Aug. 11-19, 1991; and the Fifth Annual Summer Travel Seminar to England, June 30 to July 10, 1991.

Each study tour includes tuition or audit fees, land and air prices, most meals, transfer charges, baggage handling in foreign countries, transportation within each country, sightseeing fees, services of a tour director and bilingual government guide, seminars prior to departure and bus service to and from Connecticut and a New York airport.

For additional information concerning study tour programs contact the department of graduate studies and continuing education at 203-371-7830 or 1-800-288-2498.

Class officers are concerned with representing the needs and interests of their respective classes. During the year, they frequently organize fundraisers, mixers, assist with Freshman Orientation and represent their classes in activities like the annual Spring Fest.

To become a candidate in these elections, you must be a full-time freshman in good academic standing at the University. You are not required to have any prior school leadership experience to run; any interested freshman is eligible. Freshman may run for only one office. You will need to register in the Activities Office. Registration is open through November 9. You will have one week to campaign (i.e. hang up posters, pass on fliers, buttons, balloons, campaign slogans, etc.) before the actual voting takes place.

Students interested in running for office or finding out more about what's involved may contact Student Government Vice-President George Reyes-Gavilan (371-7954) or the Activities Office (371-7969). Students are invited to attend the Student Government meetings on Tuesday at 11:00 a.m. in Room S111. Take the opportunity to find out more, and join the elections race.

What is a Catholic education?

"Educate man without religion and you make them but clever devils"

— Duke of Wellington

On the front page of this issue there is a story that reports upon a papal document which addresses Catholic higher education. A sidebar to that article aims to clarify the identity and mission of Sacred Heart University.

In another article which appeared in the Fairfield Country Catholic recently, Dr. Francis J. Lodato discussed the realities of our modern-day society.

He stated, "American culture is in the throes of serious moral decay. We are living in a time where nothing is morally wrong, and every issue is reduced to a person's right to choose. One out of two first marriages ends in divorce. Television shows and motion pictures convey the impression that marital infidelity and premarital sex are the norm. The abuse of children, physically, sexually, morally and mentally, are too common in our environments. Lack of respect for authority, for truth, for the personal property of others, have caused emotional, spiritual and mental unrest in our society.

In the face of the above indictments that we all know exist, Sacred Heart University sets out to educate students in a manner which will turn out well rounded, responsible people who will ethically and morally serve their community.

In our classrooms, SHU faculty should teach to the whole person — ethics in business, morality in human relations, the value of our environment, and the role of spirituality in the contemporary world.

Let's do it!

By Michael Champagne
Columnist

Let's get one thing straight. The Writer's Block is not news-oriented. It is a forum for opinions. I am of the opinion that you people either have no opinions of your own or you have no confidence in the opinions you do hold.

As an example, I give you this. In the last column I wrote (Spectrum, Vol. 7 Num. 6, Untitled) I challenged people to identify why university-organized events are so poorly attended, yet any group that can supply alcohol to a mass of people will attract more people than can be controlled.

In the editorial column next to mine was a related piece asking students to go directly to Student Government or to the Activities Office and tell someone why SHU's activities aren't attracting people.

Not one response has been forwarded to this paper and, to the best of my knowledge, no one has contacted the Student Government or the Activities Office with any offerings as to what might interest people. That could be due to one or more of the following reasons.

First, no one reads anything on this except for the editorial cartoon.

WRITER'S BLOCK

Now I can understand some people not reading my column because my style of writing may not appeal to them but to not read the editorial on this page really doesn't make sense. That is the one place in this paper that the editorial board can voice our opinion of matters that could affect you. Everything else in the paper is "Just the facts, ma'am."

Additionally, I'm vain enough to believe that there are people who read my column, so it doesn't seem to me that the first reason is a factor.

Second, every one was on vacation last week.

I don't buy that because we put about 2500 papers around campus and they're all gone now. Am I to assume that Joe in the cafeteria took them all to wrap used coffee grounds in? Not likely.

Third, you really don't care.

Hey, come to think of it, that doesn't sound too far off the mark. So, after the next university-sponsored event that you happen to grace with your presence, hang out for a little while, start grumbling about how the party's going nowhere and then leave and tell every one not to bother going to the next one because it sucks.

But don't bother talking to someone who could make a difference in the events held at your expense (that's the "Activities Fee" part of your tuition they are using to hold these events) because you might be better off going to a party where anyone can drink as much as they can hold and then become an agent of death behind the wheel.

Don't get me wrong. I know it's important for students to get together outside the authority of the university. I went through that stage myself. Everyone does. But that's not the point I'm trying to make.

We have a chance to make things better for ourselves and for others. That's (allegedly) why we are in college: to improve the condition of things. So why, when we are presented with an opportunity to achieve real results with a minimum of involvement, do people refuse to act?

Do something! Get pissed off about something and be a catalyst to bring about a change in that which got your goat. Drop that attitude that allows you to bitch and moan about the state of things without getting involved in their remedy.

If you don't like the way the administration is conducting something, get involved. If you don't like the registration process, get involved. If you do like the way something works, tell someone. Without any feedback there is no way changes can be made to improve them or to prevent the change of something that works.

I know you've all got opinions of things but I don't read minds and no one in charge of anything around campus does so your input is needed.

Until we meet again . . .

October...Season of the Witch...Hallows Eve...myth or reality?

Welcome to my new column, one that will excite the senses, and exhilarate the psyche. I have decided to present to you a new series based on the investigations brought about by Edward and Lorraine Warren, my self, and our team, consisting of a total of twelve persons. What the NESPR deals with is the paranormal entities as well. Ed and Lorraine have been investigating cases of supernatural happenings, hauntings, demonic possessions, and strange occurrences which go beyond our comprehension, and understanding, for over 40 years, and have attained the world renown success, as "The Real Ghostbusters." They have conducted lectures at dozens of major universities, and have sold thousands of books covering their lives, and case histories. These suffered scars and bruises as a result of directly confronting these entities, and these paranormal experiences transcend our science, and cannot be explained by the 'rational' mind.

Edward is one of three visiting demonologists in the world today. He is respected by the Roman Catholic Church, the Arch Diocese, and the high clergy world wide, as a professional ghost hunter. He has been granted permission to review 'Case X' which resulted in the making of the motion picture, The Exorcist.

Lorraine is a noted clairvoyant, and is responsible for sensing if something is wrong within a particular household. Together they have been involved in active investigation, and confrontation with human and in-human (that is something that has never walked the earth in human form) entities, worldwide. Their travels bring them to all corners of the earth, most frequently however, their work remains in the general New England area, where the earliest colonists lived. The reason for the general mass population of spirits in this area, is that New England is the oldest part of the British populated United States, and holds the best chances of a personal tragedy occurring to a particular family, resulting in an earth bound spirit. However, their work takes them to England, Ireland, and Scotland quite frequently, where the civilization is older still.

Their most notable investigations include the real Amityville cases, and the 1975 Lindley Street occurrences which occurred in Bridgeport, CT. Yes, right next door.

New England Society of Psychic Research

Whether or not you believe in paranormal occurrences is up to you. I am not going to force anyone to believe in them, that is up to the individual. I do however believe in these occurrences, and as a new member of the Warren team, I shall be a witness to the spectacular events which will come soon enough.

I am currently involved in a case in New Hartford CT. I shall interview and film the family interview, as well as the house in question. The Warrens believe that an earth bound spirit is present in their home, and after evaluating the film, and following a briefing from us, we shall proceed as they see fit.

As the weeks pass, I shall keep you informed with the progress of the case, as well as introducing you to new ones. It would take a good forty columns to tell you what I know about Parapsychology, so I shall spare you the details, and get to the good stuff. But before I do, I would like to mention the basic laws that the Warrens hold true:

- 1) Never play with Ouija boards
- 2) If you have one: destroy it
- 3) Human beings cannot match strength with demons or devils.
- 4) Faith alone is your best defense.
- 5) Satanism is very active, even in Fairfield County, and results in grave robbings, and rituals that go along with the October month. This is their field day, Hallows Eve is their Sabbath, and their monstrous ceremonies, and rituals defy all sense of reality, and oppose the holy laws of God.

6) Demonic occurrences most always occur between the hours of 9:00 p.m. and 6:00 a.m. The Witching Hour is at 3:00 a.m. not 12:00 p.m. This is a direct mocking of the Holy Trinity, and Demonic occurrences always happen in threes.

One final note, for those discomforted by the preceding text: The Warrens have encountered several truly good divine spirits, Angels, and even an Arch-angel, so good forces are also hard at work here on Earth. Unfortunately, where there is a good spirit, there are often evil ones, who like to spoil the party.

Prep course ripoff

To The Editor:

In the summer of 1989 I took the Stanley Kaplan prep course for the LSAT. Before signing up for the course I was told that this was a class where the teacher and the Kaplan administration genuinely wanted to help the student. Of course, it was the course administration in New Haven who fed me this viewpoint. However, to my dismay, I have concluded that the Kaplan course is just a business and an uncaring one at that.

When I called the Kaplan Center in New Haven and spoke with the director about re-taking the course he informed me that it would cost $595.00. I made him aware of the fact that I had already taken the course a little over a year ago and did not think it was fair that I would have to pay that much money. When I signed up for the course I was told that I could retake the course for free if I chose to within a year. I explained to him that I was unable to do this within this time frame because I was out of the country for some time.

In addition, I told him that with my tuition I had paid a little over a year ago and the new amount he required the Kaplan course would have cost me over $1,200. After explaining that I was a student and couldn't afford this he said he would let me pay half tuition if I joined with a friend. Thus bringing the amount of money I had to pay for the course this year and last to over $950.00. This amount plus the full tuition my friend would have to pay would be over $1,600.

He also told me if I get two people to join up with me I could go for free. The total amount of tuition I would have brought into the school would have been over $1,800.

After being told this I was absolutely delighted. This is the extent to which the Stanley Kaplan Learning Centers care about their students. I told the administration that I would sign up for the Princeton Review.

Sincerely,
Jonathan Silberg

Three new ways to survive college.

The Macintosh LC

The Macintosh Classic

The Macintosh IIx

With Apple's introduction of three new Macintosh® computers, meeting the challenges of college life just got a whole lot easier. Because now, everybody can afford a Macintosh.

The Macintosh Classic is our most affordable model, yet it comes with everything you need—including a hard disk drive. The Macintosh LC combines color capabilities with affordability. And the Macintosh IIx is perfect for students who need a computer with extra power and expandability.

No matter which Macintosh you choose, you'll have a computer that lightens your work load without giving you another tough subject to learn. Every Macintosh computer is easy to set up and even easier to master. And when you've learned one program, you're well on your way to learning them all. That's because thousands of available programs all work in the same, consistent manner. You can even share information with someone who uses a different type of computer—thanks to Apple's versatile SuperDrive™, which reads from and writes to Macintosh, MS-DOS, OS/2, and Apple® II floppy disks.

See the new Macintosh computers for yourself, and find out how surviving college just got a whole lot easier.

Who are you?

By Cynthia Lagaris
Staff Writer

Are you a senior at Sacred Heart University? If so, you might be eligible for recognition in this year's edition of Who's Who in America's Universities and Colleges, a national publication honoring outstanding students.

"I hope that this publication will provide some recognition for students who are active and contribute to the university," says Michael Bozzone, dean of students.

Currently, Bozzone is accepting applications from seniors graduating in Dec. 1990 and May or Aug. 1991.

To qualify, a student must have a 2.75 cumulative average and demonstrate their participation in extra-curricular activities or service to the university or the community.

To apply, students submit a written statement explaining their qualifications, and also provide a letter of support from faculty or staff member. The deadline is Oct. 31, 1990.

Selected students will be presented with an award during senior week on student service night.

"We have a great many deserving seniors, and I'm hoping for a healthy number of applicants," said Bozzone. "I'd like the rest of the country to know of the fine students we have at Sacred Heart," he added.

Actor, professor Frank Speiser to revive campus drama

By Chris Nicholson

Drama classes, student productions, and a university theatre organization, are now being organized with the help of newly acquired professor and actor Frank Speiser.

Presently teaching communications classes at Sacred Heart, Speiser has already begun planning drama for next Semester. He hopes to be teaching an acting course, and is planning a student production of You Can't Take It With You for the spring.

Speiser is also interested in breathing life back into the stagnant campus drama club. After several years of inactivity, a revival of the drama club was attempted by a group of students late last semester, but plans fell through during the summer. Speiser would like to see those students continue the club's revival, and he is ready to help them do it.

Acting Career

Speiser began acting as a student at the University of Bridgeport, then moved on to the Yale School of Drama at the suggestion of a UB professor. He graduated from Yale Drama in 1971.

"It was an amazing time to be at that school," Speiser said. "Yale was incredible, jumping with excitement. There was the Panther trial, political demonstrations, and Yale drama was incredible!"

At Yale Speiser developed the character he would become well-known for portraying: Lenny Bruce, a real-life comedian in the early 1960's prosecuted for performing "obscene" material. The prosecution and censorship eventually drove Bruce to his death at 40.

While at Yale Speiser wrote the show "The World of Lenny Bruce," and after graduation he toured the show to over 200 colleges in the United States. The play also ran off-Broadway for five months in 1974, earning Speiser an Obie nomination for best actor.

Although the written script is mostly Bruce's material, Speiser occasionally adds material of his own based on funny experiences. This he does in the style Bruce would have been proud of. Speiser offers the example, "I was in the bathroom of a train station and this guy just started talking to me. I can't urinate when someone's talking to me, especially a stranger." The next night Speiser used the experience as a bit in the show, and "the audience loved it," he said.

Speiser's acting credits include minor roles for the films The Electric Horseman and The Rose, along with several television movies and political commercials.

Speiser on Censorship

The Lenny Bruce Show has a great deal of relevance today, says Speiser, especially with its attempted censorship of art and music that we read about daily.

Speiser whole-heartedly agrees art should not be censored. "There can't be any censorship," he stated. "When you do that you start falling into the pitfall of somebody's taste."

According to Speiser, one censorship would start a chain reaction. "As soon as somebody says, 'This is bad,' then that means something else has to be good. Then a guy can say 'I don't like this, so you can't do it.'"

"She's very studious," says fellow student and friend of seven years, Marifrances Cooney. She spends a great deal of time on her studies.

"She's a highly visual, highly energetic and highly personable young S.H.U. woman," adds Peter Folino.

Christine DeRosa, a transfer student from St. Anselm's New Hampshire, is an accounting major, Student Government Representative and Judicial Chair, a Student Orientation Leader, the Treasurer of the Debate Society, and a member of the Accounting Club.

"I've always been one to get involved in activities. I think I make a pretty good leader," says Chris. It has been fun for her. She believes all her involvements have made her who she is today.

"I'm a hard-working and ambitious person," says Chris, "a happy, go-lucky person who can sit back and enjoy life while working hard."

As a full-time student with an average of five classes a semester, and a wide range of extra-curricular activities, Chris still manages to maintain a 3.5 GPA. On top of all that, she works 15-20 hours weekly as a bookkeeper at the Three Brothers Sport Shop.

Greeks invade SHU theatre

By Chris Conway
A & E Editor

"One of the most exciting and influential periods in Western civilization will be dramatically portrayed when the Humanities Touring Group opens its 1990-91 season with the acclaimed The Greeks: In the Beginning" on Tuesday morning, November 6 at 10 a.m. in Sacred Heart University in Fairfield."

The Humanities Touring Group was founded in 1987 by award-winning playwright, Claude McNeal and his associates Piotr Gzowski, Anne Grant Rice and Sher Komisar. "The Greeks..." is a multi-media piece which traces the culture of ancient Greek culture from the Mycenaean Age to the Golden Age in Athens. It includes the birth of Greek Mythology, Homer's "Illiad and Odyssey," Sophocles' "Oedipus Rex," the trial of Socrates, the great oration of Pericles and Aristophanes' "Lysistrata."

"The Greeks: In the Beginning" is the first installment in a trilogy about western civilization called

"The Great Eras of Western Civilizations." The second installment, "The Renaissance Era: Europe Awakens" has a tentative premiere date of April 7, 1991 and the final program of the trilogy will go into production some time in 1992.

The production uniquely incorporates live action, visuals and music, and draws off the talents of professional actors, dancers, musicians and artists from New York and Connecticut. The production has received a great amount of acclaim from critics and encouragement and financial support from companies such as Xerox, General Electric and Sikorsky Aircraft.

A great change which "The Greek..." has gone through this year is that it will use a great number of SHU students in the production. These students include Greg Haberny, Elisa Tristanchio, Melissa Smith and Paul Perille.

Perille as well as being a student at Sacred Heart University, is also a fitness instructor and also pursues his acting career. He has appeared on stage, in films and television commercials. Perille was up for the head role in the film Mystic Pizza but worked as an extra and a stand in on the film. When asked which medium he liked to work in most, Perille had this to say: "The stage, because on the stage you have a personal contact with your audience. One you can't get in film or on television."

As far as working with Claude McNeal, he said, "to work with Claude McNeal is an opportunity you can't turn down. His play is so well written and such opportunities don't come that often."

Tickets for "The Greeks: In the Beginning" are still available for certain performances at $10.00 each. All performances are open to the public and will be presented at the SHU theatre during the following times:

Tuesday, November 6 at 10 a.m.

Wednesday, November 7 &

Thursday, November 8 at 9:30 a.m. and 11:15 a.m.

For further information and reservations, please call Denise Kuhn or Piotr Gzowski at 365-7600.

A homecoming of a different sort

By Chris Conway
Arts & Entertainment Editor

It is a common fantasy for young children to believe that the people they live with are not real parents and the real ones are a king and queen or some type of celebrity. Welcome Home Roxy Carmichael, a new film from the people at Paramount, address this often occurring idea.

The film stars Winona Ryder (Heathers) as Dinky Bossetti, a fifteen-year-old outcast of the small midwestern town of Clyde, Ohio. At the film's beginning, the townspeople of Clyde are gearing up for the arrival of their hometown girl turned celebrity, Roxy Carmichael.

The reason for Roxy's return is for the dedication of the Roxy Carmichael Center for Cosmetology and Drama. This return has the entire town in pandemonium. The town's council has declared it Roxy Carmichael Week and is holding a Roxy Ball. The Historical Society takes people on a tour of "the house that Roxy Carmichael lived in." Ex-boyfriend Denton Webb, played by Jeff Daniels (House on Carol Street), is nervous about the return. And, of course, Dinky who hopes to follow in her idol's footsteps.

"This is a film about how we create gods only so that we can destroy them—the god of celebrity being the greatest," comments screenwriter/executive producer Karen Leigh Hopkins.

The film was directed by Jim Abrahams (Big Business) who says, "people are fascinated with celebrities, that's why magazines like People, Life and Time are so popular. Welcome Home Roxy Carmichael addresses the whole nature of celebrity worship."

In his direction of the film, Abrahams builds a world for the viewer which places celebrity worship very high in people's lives.

Most of the performances in the film are very good and are full of emotion, which compliments the

Lately, it seems that many post-modern bands are looking for a change to attract a whole new audience or cash in at the record store and The Replacements are no exception. It's been two years since we have heard any new material from the band, but look out because 1990 brings us their latest effort "All Shook Down."

You could almost call this a solo album from the band's leader Paul Westerberg, who wrote all of the selections as well as serving as the album's co-producer. You might even call it "Don't Tell a Soul—Part II" because it is merely an expansion of the new ground broken in 1988. Any way you slice it, it's The Replacements and it's not all that bad.

Even though it carries some similar sounds that we heard on

"Don't Tell a Soul," the new mainstream look of the band is paying off. "All Shook Down" brings out some acoustic guitar and new vocal melodies. The change to a more popular sound could be credited to Scott Litt, who produced the highly successful "Green" LP from R.E.M. It's clean rock-n-roll, nothing fancy, but Litt and Westerberg construct a sound that is comfortable for the listeners.

The songs are short and simple. Three and a half minutes is lengthy on this album, but they reminded me of some of the tunes that we heard during the tidal wave of new rock, in the early 80's. If you took a liking to the old material with the punk outlook chances are you won't like this. Westerberg's carbon copy of the last album is less punk, more pop. Songs like "Merry Go Round", "Attitude" and "Happy Town" are the most likeable from the thirteen song selection.

Don't get me wrong. This album is not perfect. I didn't like the idea of Paul Westerberg singing solo with his guitar. His voice tone is too low and with his depressing lyrics on "All Shook Down" to go with it, I almost turned the power off to my CD player. He needs the band behind him to carry it along, but since the musicians were listed as staff rather than a band in the liner notes, it seems that trouble might be in the future for The Replacements.

All and all, the album delivers a tolerable guitar rock band who can give us a somewhat original sound. It might be worth it for you to pick this one up. Especially if you liked the last one. If you're not a fan of The Replacements, it might collect dust on the shelf with other albums you listened to twice. Sample this one before you buy it.

dialogue and action of the script.

Ryder was eager to play the character of Dinky upon first reading the screenplay three years ago. "I identified with her desires to be accepted on her own terms," Ryder observes.

Commenting on his role of Denton Webb, Daniels said "Denton is a very straightforward, nice guy who's married and has two kids. During the week that Roxy comes home, he becomes so confused that he becomes a basket case."

Welcome Home Roxy Carmichael is a good film about how small towns will do anything to please their hometown celebrities. It is also a "feel good" film that is worth checking out.

The Twin Peaks intrigue

By Catherine Gingerella
Staff Writer

Who killed Laura Palmer? Although a question on the mind of every Twin Peaks fan, viewers are now starting to question whether or not they really care.

Started as a series last spring by creators David Lynch and Mark Frost, Twin Peaks has definitely marked itself as original, creative, and yes, weird. Nominated for 14 Emmy Awards, Twin Peaks, although it received no awards, was renewed due to its popularity and unique style.

The plot is extremely complex and intricate, and if anyone can follow it completely, they get much deserved credit. Although the details are tedious to explain, the main plot is this: A young, popular high school student in the town of Twin Peaks, Laura Palmer, has been murdered for reasons unknown. Inspecting the case are Sheriff Harry Truman (Michael Ontkean) and Special FBI Agent Dale Cooper (Kyle MacLachlan). As clues arise from the wide range of unusual and fascinating characters on the show, the mystery becomes more complex and difficult to solve.

Although murders on other "soap-opera" type shows are solved through series of rational, reasonable, and concrete clues, the Twin Peaks mystery is slowly unraveled by clues that are anything but rational. The clues, from various characters (especially Cooper) are revealed through dreams, visions, and strange occurrences. What Lynch and Frost seem to have devised is a show that satirizes other drama-mysteries that take their shows too seriously. Twin Peaks is funny, and is making fun of "soap-operas," the seriousness they try to present, and the seriousness with which their audiences take them for.

The show is extremely creative and inventive. Nothing on T.V. has ever surmounted to anything as fascinating as Twin Peaks. The actors primarily keep the show the success it is, especially MacLachlan, and Sherilyn Fenn (Audrey Horn).

The "strangeness" of the show is what makes it a landmark, and can't be explained but must be watched. Where else on T.V. can you listen to a midget talk backwards, watch a woman talk to her log, see food disappear before one's eyes, be fascinated with a psychopath named Leo, and fall for a handsome FBI agent?

Despite the frustration of not knowing who killed Laura Palmer, Twin Peaks is a riot to watch. If you've never seen an episode, good luck at following the plot, but it's definitely a show to turn to and enjoy.

TWIN PEAKS

Clockwise from top: The Twin Peaks cast looks on at Laura Palmer's funeral; Sherilyn Fenn (Audrey) with her "Special Agent" Cooper (Kyle MacLachlan); Sheriff Truman (Michael Ontkean) and Cooper.

"counterpoint." "We would be less catholic if we were not open to other traditions," says Trebon. "It is universal."

"We are enriched by our religious and cultural diversity," adds Cernera who understands the document's "intent to help Catholic universities deepen their own understanding of their identity," but "realizes in some cultures it may not be possible," where there are few Catholics that make up the population.

Religious studies professor Dr. Joseph Grau sees that the document encourages dialogue among diverse peoples of the world. "It has some excellent positive ideas about how a religious oriented university can make a contribution in a religiously pluralistic world."

"Original forms of dialogue and collaborations are to be encouraged between Catholic universities and the other universities of a nation on behalf of development, of understanding between cultures and of the defense of nature in accordance with an awareness of the international ecological situation," explains the document.

The document also asks for the adherence to "Fidelity to the Christian message as it comes to us through the church." Cernera says "a lot of these issues are not germane," to SHU, while Trebon points out, "catechismal instruction is not appropriate as part of the university as university." They do recognize the need for the study of religion and philosophy at a liberal art college such as SHU to create well-rounded students.

A "search for an integration for knowledge, dialogue between faith and reason, an ethical concern and a theological perspective," as well as a respect for the person and search for truth are emphasized in the constitution.

"The quest for truth is a universal quest," says Nadeau. "When one has found a piece of truth, one knows it. One feels more alive, more enlightened, more connected with someone or something greater than oneself. The quest happens anywhere and everywhere. I believe it is the hope of our Catholic institutions that when that piece of truth is discovered, it can be seen against the bigger backdrop of faith. Whether that attainment of the truth is placed in a religious context or not doesn't negate the quest."

Cernera finds it difficult to separate those parts of SHU that make it Catholic and those pursuits that define it as an institution of higher learning. "I don't know how you separate those things out," says Cernera. Often the goals are the same.

Trebon believes part of the Catholic tradition involves "life long learning." He talks about learning itself as a religious and "profoundly human experience." The apostolic constitution, according to Trebon, "reaffirms what SHU is about."

"We know we are doing our mission if our graduates and ourselves have become more conscious than we do make a difference in our world, if we all gained a deeper respect for the care of the planet, and if we're each willing to do all that we can to make our homes, our neighborhoods and cities more peaceful."

Study says college athletes are unhappy

Big-time college athletes don't feel much like heroes. Instead, they often feel isolated, frustrated, exhausted and pressured, two sociologists report in a new study.

The study blamed victory-obsessed college athletic departments for warping the students' experiences.

"The bottom line is, if the coach doesn't win, he loses his job," said University of Colorado sociologist Patricia Adler, who coauthored the most recent study with husband Peter Adler, a sociologist at the University of Denver.

In tracing the lives of student members of a Division I National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) men's basketball team at an unnamed Southwestern private university, the Adlers found students were quickly disappointed upon arriving on campus.

From the moment they stepped onto campus, athletes were treated differently and isolated from the general student population, the study said.

They were housed in an athletic dormitory, ate at a training table and maintained a rigorous practice schedule that interfered with social pursuits and school work.

A 1989 NCAA survey of 1,789 athletes nationwide uncovered similar complaints.

A disturbing percentage of students said they felt isolated on their campuses, had little time to study, and that they often felt physically abused by their coaches.

the defendants, and the criteria for defining institutions "non-sectarian" was established in the Burger Opinion. These characteristics were written by the defendant's attorney in a pamphlet titled "The Search for Sectarianism in Education."

If persons other than Catholics were admitted to the student bodies and given faculty appointments, attendants at religious services was not required of students, religion courses were not limited to the Roman Catholic religion, no effort was given by the colleges to proselytize religion, and there was an adherence to established principles of academic freedom, the institutions were then called "non-sectarian."

According to a summary of the decision that appeared in a SHU self-study in 1983, "Rather than weakening its Catholic identity, the Burger Opinion served to reveal how the university's uniqueness within much of traditional Catholic higher education places it near the forefront of newer concepts of Catholicity and moves it more fully into the mainstream of American higher education."

In September of 1990, the Most Reverend Edward Egan signed a 90 year lease for Sacred Heart University's continued use of its 53-acre campus, owned by the Diocese of Bridgeport.

Tribute to Lisa Dedrick

By Lori Bogue

Lisa M. Dedrick was a warm, easy going senior, majoring in Business whose life was claimed in an automobile accident on May 25, 1990.

Dedrick was a hard worker and was very involved in softball. She played for both Waterford High School, and Mitchell Junior College in New London before transferring to Sacred Heart in 1986.

Mitchell College Softball Coach Jim Grant replied, "Lisa was a pleasure to have on the team. She was willing to do extra, and help out where she could." Grant noted Dedrick to be, "the finest first baseman Mitchell has ever had, she was outstanding and possessed a division one glove." Grant also stated that Lisa was a hard worker. Before Lisa's attendance at Mitchell College, in grades' eight and nine, she would stop in the gym and field ground balls to perfect her defense. Lisa was also involved with an outside job, catering, and school work. Grant replied sadly, "Lisa was a good person, it was very sad to see her leave that way."

With continued hard work, Dedrick became an impressive first baseman for the Pioneers. In 1987, Lisa helped the Pioneers clinch a 40-7 record, and earn a fourth place finish in the NCAA Division II Nationals in Quincy, Illinois.

Coach Elizabeth Luckie replied, "Lisa was a very special person. I don't think she ever had an unkind word to say to anyone. She was always pleasant, very easygoing, and would befriend anyone. Her death has left an impact on many of our lives. She is missed very much by her family and friends."

Lisa's death has left many shocked, horrified, and saddened, but her memory will live on in those who knew and loved her, and also in two special awards set up in her honor, Coach Luckie will initiate, "The Lisa M. Dedrick Defensive Award," in 1991 which recognizes an outstanding member of the team. Also Waterford High School has set up, "The Lisa M. Dedrick Scholarship Fund." Donations would be appreciated and can be forwarded to Waterford High School, 20 Rope Ferry Rd., Waterford, CT 06385.

Missives from the Madman

To dive or not to dive, that is the question. The answer, at least publicly from Buster Douglas would say not, but privately and twenty eight million dollars later the answer may not be the same. Not to take anything away from the accomplishments of Evander Holyfield, it was a punch and a good one at that, but was this or was Buster not the same man who got up off the deck after being knocked down by Mike Tyson, the hardest hitter I ever saw? All Poetry aside, Buster probably did not take a dive but I don't feel he was all that anxious to continue either.

After half an NFL season, we still have two unbeaten NFC games but after week 13 this will not be the case. The Giants-49er matchup will be a preview of the NFC Championship and the best two teams in football (sorry Raider fans). Can the Giant D stop magic Montana? How successful will the methodical punishing Giant offense fare with the niner D? Aren't the Vikings pathetic? Go ahead Herschel, retire. I don't think his team will miss him. Losing the Monday night contest with the Eagles a couple of weeks ago was just a small indication of how bad this team is, to lose to another joke team like the Philadelphia Cheeseballs the way the Vikes did. Horrible. And remember I picked the Vikings to win the division. Please people, be against me in football and you shall 'live large.'

Speaking of picks, here is how the NBA will shape up according to the Madman this season:

Eastern Conference Final:

Bulls vs. Pistons

Western Conference Finals:

Spurs vs. Lakers

NBA Final: Bulls over Spurs

Midwest

1. Mr. Robinson
2. Utah
3. Dallas
4. Houston
- D-Fenseless
6. Timberwolves

7. Magic

Pacific

1. Lakers
2. Phoenix
3. Seattle
4. Portland
5. Golden Mullin
- Sacramento (Hi Tom)

Atlantic

1. Knicks
2. 76ers
3. Gerital Celts
4. Nets
5. Bullets
6. Heat

Central

2. Jordan
3. Cavileers
4. Indiana
5. Milwaukee
6. Atlanta Nuggets
7. Charlotte

How 'bout them Rangers? Seriously, the Rangers have been the class hockey thus far this year. Mike Richter has proven last year wasn't a fluke and Bernie Nicholls and Darren Turcotte have been scoring machines. The Devils will give the men in blue their toughest competition.

The Pioneer soccer squad finishes up their regular season with a 2-0 victory over St. Anselm's and Dan Dos Santos kept right on rolling along with another goal as he is one of the top scorers in all college soccer. A 14-5 record, the most successful in SHU soccer history will go far in Joe McGuigan's recruiting efforts.

The Rodney Smith situation, was a most unfortunate one for a basketball team that sorely needed his leadership. This team will miss him. Someone will have to step up and take Smith's spot. Hopefully someone will.

Volleyball team continues to win

By Lori Bogue
Sports Writer

The Lady Pioneer Spikers improved their record to 13-9 in Volleyball play by winning four of their last five matches.

The Pioneers beat Southhampton (LIU) College in afternoon action on Saturday. The Pioneers lost only the first game 15-9 before shutting down LIU, 15-7, 15-12, 15-11. Jennifer Dankulich had an impressive afternoon with 11 kills, and four block solos. Donna Charchenko and Maria Cavaliere smashed eight kills apiece. Vicki Kennedy had five service points and April King had 24 assists.

On October 23, the Spikers beat Southern University before dropping a loss to Division 1 Fairfield University on Thursday October 25. Fairfield crippled the Pioneers, although the Pioneers did manage to eek out a win in game two, 15-6. Other scores included 15-9, 15-7, and 15-11 in favor of Fairfield. Charchenko led the team with 12 kills, while Cavaliere and Dankulich both had seven kills. Heather Crilly contributed with 38 digs, and King with 24 assists.

On October 22, the Pioneers beat Queens College in three straight matches: 15-3, 15-8, and 15-9. Cavaliere led the Pioneer attack with 11 kills, and Charchenko contributed with seven kills. Crilly had an impressive 11 service points in game two.

This weekend, the ladies take part in the NECC tournament Friday and Saturday at the University of New Haven in West Haven. Listen for the time of the matches and come out and support the Pioneers!

Men's soccer wait for ECAC's

By Rick Ferris
Sports Editor

The Men's Soccer team concluded its regular season with a 14-5 record and 3-4 record in the NECC, and are ranked #18 in the nation. With a 14-5 record, one would think the team would be preparing for the NCAA's, but since the Pioneers are locked in the toughest conference in the nation, an NCAA won't be forthcoming. In Division II, 12 teams make it in four regions with three in the northeast region. So the team awaits word on the ECAC tournament.

Head Coach Joe McGuigan said of the team's chances to make the ECAC, "I think they're pretty good. Based on the fact that we're ranked #5 in New England and since they take four teams, our chances are very good because at least three teams will go into the NCAA's. It gives us a very good opportunity."

This past Sunday, the Pioneers concluded their regular season with a 2-0 victory over St. Anselms from New Hampshire. Senior Dan Dos Santos opened the scoring with a goal with 28:32 left in the game. Donato Piselli assisted on the goal. With 19:13 left, Senior Walter Pons finished the scoring with a goal assisted by Dos Santos.

Afterwards, McGuigan stated, "we played well. Daniel (Dos Santos) had a pulled quad which limited his effectiveness. Considering we were knocked out of the NECC's on Wednesday when Keene State beat Franklin Pierce, the guys played pretty well."

Last Wednesday, the Pioneers trounced Quinnpiac 11-3. Dos Santos led the way with an immaculate six goals tying a school record. Also adding goals were senior Frank Surace, Theo Burnett, Allan Zuniga, Donato Piselli, and Tony Ventresca.

Afterwards McGuigan commented, "The entire team had its best offensive display of the season. A little sloppy on defense, but sometimes it goes hand in hand with having a strong offense."

On October 22, the Pioneers beat Bentley College 3-0. Scoring goals for Sacred Heart was Marco Sanchez, Dos Santos, and Piselli. Surace and Leom McKeown had assists for the Pioneers.

McGuigan stated, "the outstanding players down the stretch were Dino Scaccia in goal, Zuniga and Surace on defense, Sanchez in midfield, and Burnett and Dos Santos on forward line."

SHU KICKS: Dos Santos leads the nation in goals scored (33), and in points with 77.

Edgar Pons passes the ball just ahead of a block attempt by a C.W. Post player during recent action. The game was a pivotal point in the SHU booter's season.
