Sports to stay multidivisional

By Rick Ferris
Sports Editor

After months of consideration, Sacred Heart has decided to maintain its multi-divisional status. Lacrosse and football will continue to compete at the Division III level, while the other nine sports will compete at the Division II level.

In February a panel of SHU faculty, administrators, students, and alumni were assembled in response to the NCAA convention in January not allowing multidivisional competition. But because of mixed signals coming from the NCAA, any decision to change status was put off.

Despite staying Division II, the school froze the athletic scholarships the teams could give out. Student-athletes already here will continue to receive aid, but the coaches can't give out any new athletic aid. Instead, aid will be handed out to incoming athletes based on merit and need.

Sacred Heart Vice President of Enrollment Planning and Student Affairs Jim Barquinero was quoted in the Stamford Advocate as saying, "With the growth of enrollment and the increasing cost of tuition, the result is that we need to hand out more scholarship dollars. But our problem is that we have a limited amount of dollars."

Barquinero continued, "We had to evaluate all our line items in our financial aid pool to satisfy the enrollment goals of the university and the needs of the 95 percent of our students who do not receive athletic grants-in-aid."

Barquinero also estimated that even without athletic aid, that financial and merit aid will cover about 80 percent of the costs for student-athletes.

There has also been talk of a possible move from the New England Collegiate Conference to the Northeast-10. Image is the

Graduation speaker announced

President Emeritus of St. John's to give keynote

The Very Rev. Joseph T. Cahill, C.M., president emeritus of St. John's University, will deliver the Commencement address at Sacred Heart University's 35th Commencement exercises on Saturday, May 18.

The program, which will begin at 10 a.m., will be held outdoors on campus.

Father Cahill, who retired as St. John's chief executive in August 1989 after 24 years in the position, will receive the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa. Other honorary degrees will be conferred upon the Deputy Secretary of Transportation, Elaine L. Chao, who is the highest ranking Asian-American in the United States government, and Rev. Arthur Simon, president of Bread for the World (BFW).

Chao will be presented the degree of Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, while Rev. Simon will receive the degree of Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

"We felt it would be appropriate to have a distinguished theologian/educator as our University's Silver Anniversary Commencement speaker. Father Cahill was an obvious and appropriate choice," said Sacred Heart University President Dr. Anthony J. Cernera.

SHU mourns the loss of Dr. Joseph Grau

Dr. Joseph Grau, a prominent figure in Catholic social action and professor of Religious Studies at Sacred Heart University, died on Monday, April 22 at Connecticut Hospice in Branford. He was 70 years old.

"Dr. Joseph Grau had a distinguished career of excellence in teaching and scholarship, and will be sadly missed," said Dr. Anthony Cernera, president of the University. In addition, he played a vital role in American Catholic Church life through his involvement in organizations like Pax Romana. He lived his faith each day of his life and he stands as an important example to all of us at Sacred Heart University."

"What he profoundly believed in and wrote about was the essential unity of all things," said Sr. Anne-Louise Nadeau of the University Counseling Center. "He believed that none of our acts are isolated, and that we are all part of the evolutionary process. What he taught lives on in the people and in this institution."

"Dr. Grau was the first person to greet me at SHU," said Dr. Edward Papa of the philosophy department. "He was an affectionate, caring man whose loss shakes me deeply."

Students recall Dr. Grau as a dynamic and challenging teacher. "Dr. Grau incited me to learn," said Hector Perez. "He was a voice of Christian wisdom." Sophomore Tara Mehegan said simply, "Dr. Grau symbolizes peace in my mind."

Dr. Grau was the author of many articles on business ethics and Catholic social thought, as well as the book Morality and the Human Future in the Thought of Teilhard de Chardin. His illness interrupted his work on a business ethics book entitled Beyond the Bottom Line: Geo-Humanism, Theology, and the Dynamics of Corporate Culture.

Dr. Grau joined the Sacred Heart faculty in September 1978. Since then he taught courses in religion on the undergraduate and graduate level. His administrative duties included Director of the Program

Ciesielski, Ross take top honors

By Michael Champagne
Associate Editor

In an unusual display of student apathy, incumbent Student Government (SG) President A.J. Ciesielski and Vice-Presidential candidate Todd Ross went unopposed in the SG elections. As a result, this tandem will begin their terms in office on June 1, 1991.

"I'm looking forward to working with Todd," said Ciesielski. "He's got good potential to emerge in the future as a fine leader," he continued.

Said Ross of his win, "I'm a little disappointed that no one else was running because I was ready for the campaign. On the other hand, I'm glad that someone who doesn't care didn't run."

Director of Student Activities and Advisor to the Student Government, Tom Kelly, was also disappointed that there was no competition for the two highest positions students can hold on campus. "If there was competition for these positions it [would have

Derby won by Italian Club

By Denise Kuhn

When the First Annual SHU Derby Race came down the homestretch the Italian Club had successfully outpaced all other student organizations to win one thousand dollars and a trophy as recognition for their time and effort.

The Italian Club, lead by Lisa Pazmandi who devoted thirty-five hours alone, and the other organizations which participated, helped raise $53,000 in pledges, not including corporate donations.

"Our closest competition was the Student Ambassadors," said the Italian Club's Vice-President, Dave Licursi.

During the six weeks of phoning which spanned from February 4 to March 14, over 2300 alumni pledged funds.

"Basically [the difficult part] was just motivating our club...for the whole time." It was difficult to keep people motivated for six weeks, but morale was kept up by showing donation figures and telling people how the organiza-

He walked on the moon

In celebration of National Science and Technology Week, Col. James B. Irwin, astronaut will give a lecture on Friday, April 16, 1991 from 4:00 p.m.-5:00 p.m. in the Schine Auditorium in the Sacred Heart library.

Col. Irwin was selected as an astronaut by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) in 1966. He was subsequently a member of the astronaut support crew for Apollo 10 and backup lunar module pilot for Apollo 12. On the Apollo 15 mission (July 26 to August 7, 1971) he served as lunar module pilot. On this flight, Col. Irwin logged 295 hours, 11 minutes in space, of which 19 hours, 46 minutes were spent outside the spacecraft.

The lecture, which is free and open to the public, is being sponsored by PROJECT SMARTNET, a collaborative effort between Sacred Heart University and Fairfield Public Schools. PROJECT SMARTNET is funded by a major grant from The National Science Foundation.

Kudos to...

Larry Mastroni, a history major and president of the Sacred Heart chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the international history honor society, was given an award for his paper "Bartolome de las Casas: Man of the Two Worlds." The paper was presented at a regional meeting of Phi Alpha Theta, at Western Connecticut State University on April 20, 1991. The paper was originally prepared for a course in Latin American history taught by Dr. Charlotte Gradie.

"Radio Pages" expands

"Radio Pages" a newly expanded WSHU-FM news-magazine program, which airs Saturday mornings from 10-11 a.m., highlights personalities, issues, causes, cultures, the environment-society in general, says its producer and anchorman Tom Kuser.

"The program began last September as a 30-minute piece in tandem with a National Public Radio (NPR) series on prejudice," said Kuser, who is news director for WSHU-FM public radio station.

"Radio Pages" expanded to 60 minutes in February, broadening its scope of topics. The weekly broadcast, which is prerecorded, features from four to seven segments per program. Among locally generated reports are stories featuring Sacred Heart University faculty and staff.

Based in the Jefferson House on the SHU campus, WSHU-FM has a signal that reaches east to west from New Haven to Stamford and north to south from Danbury to Suffolk County, L.I. Among the state's non-commercial radio stations, it ranks second in popularity only to Connecticut Public Radio.

The cafeteria was the hottest spot on campus last Thursday, as the Italian Club and Ultra turned the drab interior into "Club SHU" for a night of dancing and fun.

main reason given for such a move.

Barquinero commented, "We are the only Catholic school in the NECC. What is the similarity between us and the private and state schools in the NECC besides geography?"

"What's the similarity between us and the University of Bridgeport except that we're both on Park Avenue?" he continued. "We're a totally different school than Bridgeport. We have different programs and attract different types of students. We are a school looking to grow and move toward schools who are similar to us."

Vice President for Institutional Advancement John Gerlach

said of a possible move to the Northeast-10, "There is a possibility (of joining the Northeast-10). We haven't had any discussions with them about membership at this time."

Barquinero said the freeze on athletic grants will be reviewed next year to see what effect it has on our athletic programs.

brought] issues out and created excitement around campus. But the fact that there was no competition shouldn't have negative connotations, because I feel A.J. and Todd are eminently qualified."

The elections for SG Representatives and Class Officers are experiencing similar problems as was seen in the Presidential and Vice-Presidential ballot.

"The Class of '93 and the Class of '94 have good competition in SG representative and class officer areas, [but] the Class of '92 has two representative positions unfilled," indicated Ciesielski.

Undaunted by the elections, Ciesielski remains optimistic. "SG did a fine job this year and I expect that we will again next year. I'm enthusiastic about next year. I want to focus attention on reviving student life on campus. It's a big issue that needs to be addressed." Both Kelly and Ross concurred on that matter.

Said Kelly, "If I were to set an agenda for the SG, it would be project involvement. We need to increase the sense of pride, student morale and spirit. That's my priority and should be SG's priority as well."

Fr. Cahill to address graduating class

Prior to his arrival at St. John's, Father Cahill served in many capacities at Niagara University and St. Joseph's College, Princeton, N.J., rising to the presidency at both institutions. He completed theological studies at Mary Immaculate Seminary, Northampton, Pa., and earned a M.A. at St. John's in 1950.

Father Cahill, who currently is professor emeritus of history at St. John's, has been the recipient of several honorary degrees.

Elaine Chao was nominated by President Bush as Deputy Secretary of Transportation on Feb. 17, 1989 and confirmed unanimously by the Senate on April 19 that year. As the second in command, she is chief operating officer of a 106,000-employee organization with a $30 billion budget and is responsible for program and policy guidance over surface, sea and air transportation.

Chao, who holds an MBA from the Harvard Business School and an undergraduate degree from Mt. Holyoke College, has received many honors and awards. She was selected as one of the Ten Outstanding Young Women of America in 1987 and was presented the Outstanding Young Achiever Award from the National Council of Women in 1986.

Rev. Simon is the founder and president of Bread for the World, a Christian citizens' movement on world hunger based on Washington D.C. In 17 years, the organization had grown from a small group of people into a national movement of 45,000.

He served as pastor and associate pastor of Trinity Lutheran Church on Manhattan's Lower East Side prior to founding Bread for the World in 1974. Under his leadership, BFW has been a key contributor to legislation aimed at improving the quality of U.S. foreign aid.

Rev. Simon, who studied at Dana College, Blair Neb., and Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, has written several books including Bread for the World, which earned the 1976 national Religious Book Award. Last October, he received the Presidential End Hunger Award for Lifetime Achievement. He holds honorary degrees from educational institutions throughout the country.

The derby race was created to encourage student organizations

Goodbye!

"Great is the art of beginning, but greater is the art of ending."
-Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

Although years traditionally begin with January, students tend to begin the year with September, and end the year in May. The months in between are generally where we find ourselves lost in space.

This year (the students' type) is one to be remembered for several reasons. At SHU, we'll remember this as the year of many firsts and changes. We achieved "residential campus" status with dormitories; athletics took on major changes with the addition of football, lacrosse, and women's soccer; a campus wide computer system has recently begun installation, and the age of recycling came to SHU. Chubby's Lounge received a facelift along with the Campus Center, and the Spectrum entered the Twentieth Century (finally) with the Macintosh desk top publishing system.

The SHU community lost a number of great people for various reasons. We said goodbye to Henry Krell, Paul McCormick, Patricia DeBarbieri, Peg Farrell, and Father Bill Sangiovanni, Ed Macciocca, and most recently, Dr. Joseph Grau.

But happily, we welcomed several new members into our family; Debbie Barton, Counseling Center, Kathy Duggan, Housing, and Father Eugene Kole, Campus Ministry.

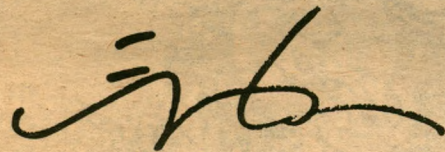

We also experience life outside of school, and a major growth experience for most, if not all of us was war. The Persian Gulf Crisis gave many of us a quick lesson on the harsh realities of conflict that most of us had never experienced.

The Spectrum is truly grateful to many people who made life just a little bit easier during those trying times. We would like to thank Graphic Image immensely for putting up with us, security for keeping us safe on those long lonely nights and early, early mornings, John Conway and your crew for fixing everything we broke and cleaning the poo off our window, Prof. Estelle Kochavi for the wonderful sink we couldn't have done without, Toni Kelly and the entire Activities staff for all that you've done, Paul Sebbens and Vinnie Mangiacapra for always bailing us out of the computerized messes we always managed to develop, Alex Mizsoni and the Cafeteria staff for keeping our tummys full when we could afford it, Frank Matthews and the mailroom staff for making last minute copies and perfunctorily delivering our mail, Ginny Apple and Public Relations for news and advice, Continuing Education and Student Government for our funds, the students of SHU and anyone else who did anything for us which we forgot (sorry!).

A special thanks goes to Ralph Corrigan, our advisor, who gave us the guidance we lived by (can I have an "A" now, Please?) and who stood by us through thick and thin. We couldn't have done it without you.

On a personal note, I would like to give thanks to Michael Champagne, who I will name my firstborn after, and to the rest of my staff, without whom, this paper would still be a tree.

Have a wonderful life everyone, and may all of your dreams come true.

Once again we have come to the end of the school year, long before any of us are really ready for it.

Don't get me wrong, we're all eagerly anticipating the end of the semester and the sojourn into summer, it's just that no one seems to be ready for it - what with papers and finals and getting caught up with classwork while still trying to maintain a modicum of civility with our fellow human beings amidst this frazzling time of the year.

Before we all go our separate ways, there are some things which should be attended to: public apologies and thanks.

First of all, my apologies to the Sacred Heart Lacrosse team for an error in last week's issue regarding the stability of our players. It wasn't a SHU laxman who lost his footing; it was a Central Conn. player getting blown off his feet by our man. Everyone knows a

THE WRITER'S BLOCK

SHU laxman never loses his footing, right?

I'd like also to apologise to the Italian Club. You guys (I use the term "guys" loosely, mind you) were quite possibly the busiest student organization on campus (after Spectrum of course) and deserved better coverage than you were accorded. Sharon, no hard feelings?

Third on my list is the Administration. You were an easy target for many a gripe and some of my most vehement writing. Although I did want it to happen, (because that would show that students around here really do care about this school), a check showed that no condoms were sent your way. Oops, can I say "condom" in a Catholic university's college newspaper.

Finally, a sincere apology to the P.R. Dept. and Ginny Apple in particular. I now know that you busted your chops on the Calendar of Events and that the real blame for their being late is the people you were waiting for that information from. Next time I hope I'll have sense enough to ask first before accusing.

Many thanks should be heaped upon professors I've had but not seen in class as often as regular students may have; Ralph Corrigan for his guidance; Piotr Gzowski for his timely (and razor sharp) wit; and to the dedicated members of this newspaper who accepted their responsibilities and followed through with them. Where were the rest of you on the days we needed you?

And finally, a special thanks to Mom and Dad for their patience and for always leaving the light on and dinner out for me (although sometimes breakfast would have been much more appropriate). I guess this summer I'll have to come up with new excuses for not being more responsible around the house, huh?

The parting remark I'd like to leave you all with to chew on while you're frittering away your summer is some advice that was given to me once. Always remember: don't sweat the little stuff. Secondly, it's all little stuff.

Have a safe and exciting summer (nice is...well...nice, but doesn't mean much in my book) and I'll see you next year.

Observations from beyond

By J. Broad

Okay, let's talk about shoulder pads. I'm not talking about the ones that football players wear for protection. I'm talking about the ones that seem to be spreading through women's clothing in epidemic proportions like some fashion accessory from hell.

Now, before any ladies take offense and stop reading, please bear in mind that in my column on marriage, I did a rather thorough job of trashing the argumentative techniques popularized by most of the male population. Wait a minute, if you stopped reading, you wouldn't be able to read this explanation of why you shouldn't stop reading. Moreover, if you are reading this explanation, then you haven't stopped reading and I don't need to explain this to you. Actually, I'm kind of getting into justifying my assault on women's fashions, so if you're still reading, bear with me.

Anyway, after denouncing the prevalent male mentality, I feel that it is only fair that an equal amount of abuse be rained upon the female fashion consciousness, which is about the only attribute females possess that is comparable in intensity and magnitude to the fabled male ego.

At this point it becomes necessary to point out that I am not some self-appointed fashion gestapo. Nor do I reside in close proximity to the fashion vanguard. (Let's come right out and say it, I have trouble matching Garanimals. My wardrobe consists almost entirely of blue, black, white, and gray; that way everything matches and I can get dressed

Letters

To the Editor:

I must agree with the letter [in Spectrum, Vol. 7, No. 21] written by "Signed on behalf of all of us". The news brief entitled, "Mom, I think I'm a Homo," was in very poor taste. Gay people differ from straight people by only the fact that we're attracted to members of our own sex. We are not evil, disgusting people. We are caring, compassionate, loving people.

One would think that Sacred Heart would embrace persons of all types, but the April Fool's news brief proved otherwise. That "joke" just reinforces the stereotypes associated with homosexuals.

There are a good number of gay men and women enrolled at SHU. We are no different inside from other students. In this day and age, when people are so up-to-date and informed, it's very sad to see something like this.

If you reject a person because they are gay, you may be missing out on a terrific person. Being "different", we know what it is like to be an outcast. We are not going to disappear just because you want us to. We are people given life by God. We deserve equality. We are no better or worse than straight people. Don't shut someone out because of their sexual orientation. Accept us as equals, and your life may be enriched in the process.

I am sure some students are upset over this. Even one or two voices can make a difference. When will the discrimination and prejudice end? As stated in the previous letter to the editor, gays are here to stay. We are active, productive members of society. We won't go away no matter how much you hate us or wish we were dead.

Hatred and ignorance devour a person's soul, essence, and heart. Inside we are essentially no different than other people. Please stop hating, and begin to understand.

Signed, Another Voice

Two Seniors say goodbye

To the SHU Community,

With graduation three weeks away, I'm relishing the anticipation that is already building. I've been a part-time student here for the past nine years, and that alone makes graduation a rather magnificent prospect.

My excitement is comprised of several emotions. Yes, I'm proud of myself for accomplishing personal growth that stretched and pulled me well beyond classes, lectures, papers and exams.

I'm proud to have been associated with the fine people I found throughout the Sacred Heart community — professors, administrators, staff and students. I'd love to name all of you to express my gratitude for your help, instruction and inspiration; but neither space nor the editor will allow me to do so. I admit there's an element of sadness in leaving you.

One of my goals as president of the Continuing Education Council was to establish a greater degree of visibility of the Council and its efforts. We have had much success in this area in just the past year, and I must thank the Council for its hard work and dedication in achieving this aim.

I encourage part-time students to support and become involved with the Council to every extent possible in order to strengthen their partnership with the university. The Council serves to insure continuation of a say in university affairs, provides a linkage to new networks, and opens doors to some wonderful opportunities. "Then I began to realize that I had to take another step in my evolution and growth." - Eileen Caddy

My colossal fear as an eighteen year old freshman was starting the unknown journey of higher education. As I wandered forlorn through the main corridor, peering through the windows of the cafe, an amazing thing happened. The doors in the middle flew open, and, in an instant, I witnessed a radiant apparition.

The cafe was filled with students, a diverse community that would become my family for four years. Everything I had ever longed for was right there in front of me. Little did I realize that at that moment, I was launching my eternal search for values and meaning.

The next three and a half years are somewhat of a blur; somewhat hazy and indistinct. But as I look back, the events that took place during that time are far from forgotten. What makes them obscure is their inexhaustible meaning and worth.

The individuals at this institution are fully a part of the ideals pioneered over a quarter of a century ago. I wouldn't be where I am today had it not been for the intellectual, academic, emotional, and spiritual guidance of this extended family.

As I prepare to embark on an even more frightening expedition after graduation, I express gratitude for my learning experiences as an undergraduate. I have learned what is important in life: to cherish every moment, every friendship, every experience.

I have learned the value of quality: quality time, quality people, quality practice. The word "quantity" shan't even exist.

I know now to seize every opportunity for personal growth — for who knows what tomorrow may bring. I have learned not to lose sleep over every class, every exam, every paper. Receiving a "C" doesn't mean that you are a "C" person.

I have experienced the temptations in life, the struggles and oppressions. I have learned that I am only stronger for having prevailed.

I have learned what happiness means — that happiness comes from within and works its way out. I have learned that giving only works if your heart is truly in it.

And I have discovered who I was, who I am and who I want to be. It's funny how things happen. I was always there but, much like a buried treasure, was waiting to be unearthed.

A special thanks to all of those who taught me how to learn, who opened my eyes to the world, and to those who possessed an undying faith in my abilities. I know now that the possibilities are endless.

tive one. No malice was intended by the article but (for what it's worth) in retrospect, the paper could have done without it. I offer my apologies and the services of this newspaper as a means of heightening awareness towards the plight of homosexuals. (M.C.)

To the Editor:

I am an aggrieved student. Besides the high cost of tuition and books, I must endure another expense. Sunday night in the north parking lot someone broke into my car thus shattering the window.

SHU only has two security guards on Sunday nights. As one can see from my letter this is not adequate protection for the students or their personal property.

This I understand is a frequent problem at SHU. If SHU realizes this is a frequent problem, then SHU should take action to rectify this recurring problem, by increasing security.

Why aren't more people getting involved in Student Government?

Charo Clark
Senior
Accounting/ Legal Admin

I believe most people didn't know that elections were going on, but I also think it's because the school lacks unity and spirit.

Mike Conetta
Sophomore
Business Admin

I think it's due to the commuter school atmosphere around here. No one sticks around to get involved in things.

April King
Senior
Biology

For me it's a time factor. Maybe others don't realize it's fun; it's not just a lot of work. Also, some people think they have to be a part of the "in-crowd" before they get involved.

Jayme McCaughern-Carucci
Junior
Biology

I think it's due to a number of reasons. It's because SHU is a commuter school, or because people don't have the time, or maybe because people fear what others are going to think if they open their mouths.

Danielle Purciello
Psychology

It's a good question. I wish I knew why. I got involved because to get everything out of school you have to get involved. You also have to be able to represent the students.

First Alumni Career Workshop helps career seekers

Saturday, April 20th, Sacred Heart University held its first Alumni Career Workshop. The event was sponsored by the Sacred Heart Alumni Association and The Continuing Education Council.

The event began at 8:30 a.m. with registration and breakfast, and ended around 4:00 p.m. with a networking reception. The workshop included a guest speaker, and seminars conducted by successful individuals within the work force. John Cunningham, Chairperson of The Career Committee for The Executive Alumni Council, said about the workshop, "We looked at other school at the ones they have had in the past, and we felt that it was time Sacred Heart had one. They began planning the workshop in January, and have plans to continue them annually."

The lecture was given by Tom O'Bryant, Director of Equal Opportunity Affairs at Champion International, based in Stamford. His topic was "Workforce 2000". "Workforce 2000" is a study which was commissioned 3 or 4 years ago by the U.S. Department of Labor. The results of this study revealed the dramatic changes which are occurring within the U.S. workforce.

O'Bryant stated that, "Historically corporate America is managed as if everyone is a white male." According to the study this will have to change. Women, Most corporations are global find their labor elsewhere. O'Bryant stated, "Foreign trade has really killed the earning prospects of the less educated in this country. They must compete in a global market and they find themselves competsibly the lack there of." O'Bryant said. Part of this he attributes to the length and quality of the academic year. The American school year is only 180 days long, on average. The Japanese school year is about 240 days long. At high school graduation Japan's students have spent 1-3 years longer in school, and have the basic knowledge of a college graduate in the U.S.

"The point in all this? How are we going to compete in a global economy if we don't start addressing certain issues?", O'Bryant stated and posed solutions to the problems within the workforce, "These are our challenges. Companies can no longer ignore the education problems. We have to adopt in the workplace major incentives to train and retrain workers. Pay teachers more money so we can attract quality teachers into the classrooms. Taylor the workforce to the new labor force." O'Bryant said.

After Mr. O'Bryant concluded his speech, the group proceeded to seminars which dealt with a variety of topics, including resume writing, stress management, networking, career change, and money management.

Dr. Nancy Frydman, a Professor of Management at Sacred Heart and partner in a communication consulting firm, presented the seminar Lifetime Career Planning Skills and found the opportunity positive. When asked what she gained from the experience, she replied, "I gained the recognition that students will have completed a certain level of their education and still have the desire to grow and develop professionally, and I am wondering if I attribute that to the environment we have created here at Sacred Heart."

The workshop provided an opportunity to acquire knowledge and information from people who are striving in the workforce, and benefit from their experiences. Cathy Pinckney, a business management major graduating May 1991, attended and benefited from the workshop. "I learned how a graduate of the university can go about doing a job hunt, and the importance of networking. You learn about what it is in classes, but through this you learn how to go about it, what to do, and how to organize a job search." Ms. Pinckney said.

Companies can no longer ignore the education problems. We have to adopt in the workplace major incentives to train and retrain workers.

minorities, and immigrants will account for 80% of net additions to the labor force.

The average age of those in the workforce will rise as a result of a decrease in young workers entering the job market. Americans over the age of 65 now outnumber teen-agers in this country.

Jobs of the future will be more service orientated and require higher-skilled workers. Corporations are finding it difficult to find the skilled workers it needs, at a rate which is profitable.

ing for jobs with lower wage earning people in other countries. For example, in South Korea the average worker earns $1.19 an hour and work 54 hours a week without even understanding the concept of over-time. As long as we trade with countries like South Korea and Mexico, for example, the less educated in this country will have a problem because we simply are not competitive in the international market."

Another problem facing America, in relation to its workforce, "...is education or pos-

Honors Program offers interdisciplinary study

By Lori Bogue
Asst. Sports Editor

The Honors Program classes combine cultural and intellectual learning along with team teaching in an attempt to provide a challenge for gifted students.

Honors Program Director Michelle Carbone Loris says that the structure of the program is unique because it is team taught and offers interdisciplinary study.

Every discipline is represented in the honors program, and guest lecturers reinforce class materials.

"I think it's stimulating and challenging to think in new ways," said Dr. Dipace Fritz. "The speakers are very willing, eager and grateful to come."

To qualify for the program students must have "SAT scores totaling 1000, or exceptionally high scores on the University placement tests," according to the program pamphlet.

In addition, students must have "high school transcripts and recommendations which indicate that they are honors candidates, an interview with the director of the program, and an entrance essay administered and evaluated by the director."

After freshman year candidates must "have recommendations from the faculty, a 3.2 GPA, an interview with the director, and completion of EN 012, and CA 21."

The honors program receives much support especially from the administration.

Dr. Marian Calabrese, director of freshman communications is an avid supporter of the honors and stated, "this program adds a much needed dimension of our multi-faceted curricular offerings and, in doing so provides exciting learning and teaching opportunities."

Many students such as Emily Matkia, feel positively toward the Honors Program.

"I feel that the Honors group is an excellent reference for the future," said Matkia. "However, I would prefer only one teacher. It gets kind of ridiculous when you feel like you're sitting in a class listening to Sisikel and Ebert giving each other the latest reviews, but not the class."

Rick Sannicandro, another honors student replied, "The Honors Program seems to be one of the courses that is pushing me to my limits, not only in writing but in communicating."

The Honors Program is also supported by occasional honors lectures, focusing on social, economic, and political topics.

Recent lecturers were delivered by Dr. Cernera, president of the university, and Dr. Thomas Trebon, academic vice president and provost.

In addition to the honors course, the program offers a study abroad option. Tuition plus of room and board is covered by the program.

Other benefits include a minor in honors after completing eighteen credits in the program, a notation on the university transcript, special awards, and a special mention at graduation.

Dr. Dipace Fritz concluded, "I get a lot out of the program. I like it. It is interesting to work with people attracted to the program. It's very challenging."

Constitutional rights evaluated in lecture

By Denise Kuhn and Michael Champagne

"Two Constitutional rights...both essential to [a] free society," was the crux of a lecture by noted author and Harvard Law School professor, Arthur Miller.

In the April 17 lecture entitled, "The Press and Privacy: A Clash of Constitutional Values," Miller compared the battle between freedom of the press and the right to privacy to a heavyweight bout complete with, "fancy footwork, low blows, and shots to the head."

"What is freedom of the press? The public's right to know. What is right of privacy? The right to be left alone," said Miller. The conflict, Miller explained, is in the question, "What is news worthy?" With this, the lines between the two rights become less well defined, and maybe even crossed.

Investigative journalism, the latest mode of information gathering, gives its reporters the reputation of going to any extreme to get information. Shows such as 60 Minutes, 20/20, Donahue, Oprah, and Geraldo round out this category, which in Miller's opinion, "work at cross purpose with privacy."

With the advances in technology over the last decade Miller warned, "No place on earth is immune from journalism." The response time from a live camera is about 2 seconds, stated Miller.

Although privacy began as what Miller coined, "a white, middle class idea," attitudinal studies showed privacy was a concern of most Americans by 1984. The fact that computers have enabled businesses and individuals to maintain dossiers about every one of us has become quite a disturbing issue. "Decisions are made about us on the grounds of files which we have no access to," he stated.

The controversy on the right to access is another problem according to Miller. The example of a news station claiming the right to see a police evidence tape was raised. Total audiences dismay, Miller revealed that this tape contains live footage of a sadomasochist torturing his last victim.

Miller encouraged all to, "remember our blessings. We have more rights than any other people on the face of the earth...and probably who have ever inhabited the planet."

Miller did not claim to have the answers to the question of conflicting rights, but he did stress the magnitude of the battle.

In the end he hopes for a draw. Which, in Miller's opinion, is what we have now. "One right can't knock the other out."

Fairfield Prep to host Saturday Night Live stars

By Chris Conway

Saturday May 4 will be unlike any other Saturday night for SNL fans because in order to see the stars of this hilarious show they won't have to go to their family rooms. Instead, they will have to get in their cars and go to the Fairfield University's Alumni Hall Gymnasium.

Comedians Dana Carvey and Mike Myers will perform a special 90 minute comedy concert to benefit Fairfield Prep High School.

Dana Carvey, a member of Saturday Night Live since the 1986-87 season is best known for his popular character the "Church Lady" who he created. He is also well-known to fans of the show as Hans of the body building duo, Hans and Franz, and Garth, the "excellent co-host" of "Wayne's World." His impersonations include actors George Burns, Jimmy Stewart, pop singer George Michael, radio personality Casey Kasem, and of course, our fearless leader, George Bush.

Mike Myers joined Saturday Night Live as a featured performer and writer in the early months of 1989. He is well known for his sketch "Wayne's World," which stars Myers as Wayne Campbell, an adolescent suburban heavy-metal fan who hosts a public access cable program from his basement. Myers also created and stars in the bizarre take-off of an avant-garde German television program, "Sprockets." He plays the unusual host, Dieter.

As live performers, both Carvey and Myers have received rave reviews. The show is expected to be great fun for all who attend. The concert will be the highlight of a special fund raising event to benefit Fairfield Prep which will also include a raffle for a 1991 Ford Explorer.

Tickets are $25 for general admission and $18 for students. They may be purchased through the Sacred Heart Box Office, or by calling Ticketron at 800-922-2030 or by calling the Fairfield University Quick Center box office at 203-254-4010. Visa, Mastercard, and American Express are accepted.

American Premier : still a possible run

Co-producer Mark Graham contacted the Spectrum in response to an article in the Apr. 18 issue of Spectrum about the American Premier Theatre, which did not come to SHU as was planned.

According to Graham, the program is still developing and plans to appear at SHU in the near future, provided that SHU is still interested. The program is seeking financial backing which has been difficult to acquire as of late economic situations in the U.S.

Said Graham, "It's a very difficult time to raise money, even for Broadway shows, much less a speculative project like this."

It was incorrectly stated by a source that the program is currently producing at the Good Speed Opera House, stated Graham. The Opera House is a non-profit organization and could not take on such an endeavor, also due to the fact that the program was designed to be presented in a university atmosphere.

Graham hopes to see the American Premiere Theatre open at SHU next year.

"Fancy Nancy" winds up in the Hot Seat

By Joann R. Mariani
Features Editor

The New York Times wrote about it. Geraldo talked about it. Three major national magazines featured cover stories on it. Unless you've been living in outer Mongolia for the last few weeks, you've probably heard enough about Kitty Kelley's new bio, Nancy Reagan, than you'd hope to know in a lifetime. The book has already raked in millions of bucks, it's flying out of bookstores, and the Stratford Library reports a mile-long waiting list. In terms of hype, Nancy Reagan has outdone The Satanic Verses. But is the book worth reading? Is it worth the time invested in its 400+ pages? Is it worth $24.95? It depends. If you like Jackie Collins, you'll love this book—it's just as juicy as Hollywood Wives, name-dropping like crazy. Did you know Frank Sinatra hated Ronald, or that it took three years of persuasion to convince Ronald Reagan to marry Nancy Davis? The book reveals Nancy as a master manipulator who slept her way into a few B-movie roles and managed to bury her lower-middle-class roots and emerge at the top of society. Nancy is portrayed as the ultimate material girl, who makes Imelda Marcos look like she took a vow of poverty. She ordered wholesale from designers and accepted wardrobes valued at millions of dollars from Adolfo, Donna Karan, and Galanos. (Until the IRS caught up with her, and she's found ways around that, too.) One White House staffer is quoted, "Nancy was the type of person who truly believes that it's more blessed to receive than to give."

While she has no qualms about accepting the generosity of others, Kelley paints her as a tight-fisted miser, who gives unwanted Christmas gifts to her friends and relatives—more than once, she has given a gift back to the giver a year later! The book also discusses the Reagans' almost symbiotic marriage, the angst of Patti, Michael, Maureen and Ron Jr. who suffer at the hands of the insidious Mrs. R, and the headlong shove that she gave Ron Sr. into politics. There is painstaking detail—if Kelley's sources are accurate, the research is impeccable; I have no idea how she was able to track down fourth-cousins, wives and children of staffers, and elementary school teachers, all of whom remember Nancy as a cool, calculated, rigid woman. The integrity of Kelley's research has been questioned, and I wouldn't take anything in the book as the gospel truth. But truth or no, Nancy Reagan is not a bad read. A little too big to drag off to the beach, but it's light, entertaining, and it won't make you expend any real intellectual energy—in short, an appropriate summer book.

Now that I have undermined your confidence in my qualifications to write this column, let me point out that fashion is one of those things that people can get very carried away with very quickly (like me, writing this column). Like the emperor's new clothes, sometimes you need a voice of reason (and taste) to point out the obvious.

Though I profess to possess neither reason nor taste, ladies, the shoulder pads have got to go. Who are you trying to fool? What are you trying to prove?

At first I thought that, possibly, shoulder pads were a necessary accessory to those long dangly earrings that are becoming so popular. I thought perhaps these earrings swung so low that they began to wear grooves in the shoulders and therefore, the protection provided by the shoulder pads was warranted. Alas no, even women wearing studs (no pun intended) were observed donning the protective gear.

Then I thought, maybe it's some broad (pun intended) philosophical premise. You know: "we've got the weight of the world on our shoulders, so we're fighting back with the foam rubber of perseverance." When removable shoulder pads appeared, that whole metaphysical foundation staged an organized retreat into the purse of enlightenment.

Could these women possibly want to be like men? No, that didn't seem like an option. They would have to be hairier, sweatier, and much less articulate in order to do that. Although this "shoulder envy" theory is an interesting premise, it is far too subjectively latent to gain widespread acceptance as an explanation of the shoulder pad phenomenon. What can it be then?

It must be to put some mystery back into those first impressions. For a long time, women's clothing practically came in a can to be sprayed on, leaving nothing to the imagination. (Not that I minded, I'm a male with a 2 to 1 hormone to brain cell ratio just like the next guy).

It was a good idea in theory, but some people have taken it just a bit too far. It's time to re-evaluate. I've seen ladies with three layers of shoulder pads: jackets over sweaters over shirts. It's getting so you need a hammer to tap someone on the shoulder.

Forget about yelling to get their attention, their ears are behind the heavily fortified wall of migrating Dr. Scholl's. Wait a minute! I've got it! They can't hear you! Those aren't shoulder pads, they're anti-nag pads! No, that can't be right. If they really were anti-nag pads, there'd be a vending machine for them in the men's room.

Men's Soccer prepares for fall season

By Rick Ferris
Sports Editor

After a highly successful indoor season, the men's soccer team now turns its attention towards their fall season. This spring saw the squad capture two indoor tournaments, and reach the finals in the other two.

Head Coach Joe McGuigan had every reason to be happy of his teams' efforts, "Every tournament was a mixture of the finest schools in Division one, two, and three." McGuigan commented.

In the Vassar Tournament, Sacred Heart's first of the spring, Sacred Heart lost in a shootout in the finals to host Vassar.

In the next tournament, the University of Bridgeport Tournament, the Pioneers once again lost in the finals. This time to Union Sport in sudden death.

Finally in the most prestigious indoor tournament in New England, the UCONN Indoor Tournament, the Pioneers finally cracked the barrier and won the final match against Southampton (LIU) 2-0. Allan Zuniga scored both goals, and was awarded the MVP of the tournament. Marco Sanchez was named to the All-Tournament team. En route to the championship, Sacred Heart knocked off Division I power UCONN in the semi-finals.

One week later, in the Connecticut College Tournament, Sacred Heart won again with an identical 2-0 score, this time over Quinnipiac. MVP Marco Sanchez scored distance, Ward allowed seven hits, one run, four strikeouts, and five walks.

The nightcap was a game of unearned runs. Of the eleven runs scored between the two teams, only three were earned. Junior Jerry Fry took the loss in his first start of the season. Junior Dan Martin had SHU's lone RBI of the game.

In probably Sacred Heart's most frustrating loss in recent memory, Assumption College rallied from a 14-5 deficit in the middle of the eighth inning to defeat the Pioneers 15-14. Seven Pioneer walks, three Pioneer errors and six Assumption hits in the final two frames sparked the comeback. Yarasavich hit a grand slam for Sacred Heart and freshman Jose Mendez hit a three run blast. Schilling had three hits.

the sixth. Keri O' Donnell illustrated five innings of strong pitching, and April Ertl relieved her for two innings. But despite these efforts the Pioneers lost 3-2.

Renee Melchiona stated,

"It shouldn't have come down to this game. Now that it has we just have to prove we are the best team in our conference. There's no other chance, we have to make it happen now."

both goals for the Pioneers. Zuniga and Theo Burnett were named to the All-Tournament squad. Zuniga, Sanchez, and Burnett were also named to the All-Tournament team in the Vassar, and the UB tournaments.

As for the fall, Coach McGuigan is optimistic. "We have 16 returning from last year's program highlighted by the above mentioned, (Zuniga, Sanchez, and Burnett) and some newcomers, Fernando Fernandez, who sat out last year is being counted on to pick up some of the slack vacated by the graduation of Daniel Dos Santos." McGuigan continued, "Also Christopher Earle who gives us along with Burnett two of the fastest forwards in New England.

And lastly Ira Turner who we're looking to solidify our already strong midfield."

McGuigan commented, "The areas we do need to strengthen are a backup to Jay McDougall in goal whom we expect to have an outstanding year, along with central defenders that can fit in to the style of play (ball control) that we play here at Sacred Heart."

McGuigan concluded, "If everything materializes as we hope, the one area that is still a question mark is the ability to finish and score goals. The solution of this problem could be the determining factor as to whether we can challenge the kingpins of New England soccer. I believe we have all the ingredients to accomplish this."

Lady Pioneers on the Cutting Edge

By Lori Bogue
Asst. Sports Editor

The Pioneers have increased their record to 22-6 with a possible bid to Regional Play-offs. It has come down to a weekend play-off game between the New Haven Chargers, and the Sacred Heart Pioneers. Shortstop, Becky Van Ort stated, "Every person is important at all times and if we play as a team, then we will win."

Sunday, the Pioneers split in an important game vs. Keene College of New Hampshire. This game was important in guaranteeing the Pioneers a play-off spot.

The Pioneers in the first game under the pitching of April Ertl beat Keene 6-2. The game broke open in the fifth inning when Renee Melchiona reached first base on an error, and Van Ort smashed a triple, scoring Melchiona.

In the sixth inning the Pioneers showed no mercy, combining for five hits, and scoring four. Melchiona added a 2 RBI triple, and Van Ort added a RBI single. Maria Cavaliere increased the team's efforts when she smashed her first home run of the season - a towering shot to deep centerfield.

The second game, the Pioneers emerged losers despite combining for six hits, and one RBI. Keene scored a run in the fourth inning off a double by Jan Schou. Keene scored two more in

Baseball team splits with NHC

By Rick Ferris
Sports Editor

The Sacred Heart University Baseball team split a doubleheader on Saturday against New Hampshire College. After belting out four home runs in the opener and defeating New Hampshire 9-1, Sacred Heart dropped the nightcap 7-4. What hurt the most was of the Penmen's seven runs, six were unearned due to untimely errors.

The loss also puts the Pioneers in a bind. With an 8-2 league record, Sacred Heart trails league-leading Lowell by one game.

Lowell captured first place with a doubleheader sweep of New Haven on Saturday. Lowell has league doubleheaders left with Keene State, New Hampshire, and Franklin Pierce. If Lowell wins those games, they win the league and the automatic bid to the NCAA's. In this scenario, New Haven would most likely get the at-large bid leaving the Pioneers out in the cold.

But if Lowell drops one game, (Keene State and New Hampshire are the teams that could realistically do it), that gives SHU new hope for the conference. With one Lowell loss and Sacred Heart sweeping both Southern and New Haven that would force a playoff game with Lowell for the league title.

Head Coach Nick Giaquinto said of last week's games, "We were inconsistent. I think we're a much better team than we showed last week. I hope we can re-focus our efforts on the process of hitting and fielding the ball and running the bases and take the rest of the season one game at a time."

In the opener Saturday, the Pioneers defeated New Hampshire College 9-1. Senior Pete Yarasavich belted two home runs for the Pioneers, (his fifth and sixth home runs of the year), and juniors Jim Bruno and Don Romeo also belted homers. Sophomore Scott Schilling continued his hot play going 2-2 with two walks, one double, and two runs scored. Schilling owns a .422 batting average for the year. Junior hurler Tim Ward (7-1) picked up the win for the Pioneers. In going the
