SHU spirit shows at Freshman Orientation

By Charo Clark News Writer

Tuesday, September 3, SHU spirit and pride showed all over campus as faculty and students welcomed new students into the Sacred Heart University community.

The closing day of the two-day event for Orientation ‘91, formally welcomed freshman and transfer students to the university, providing them with the resources to make the transition from high school to college a little easier.

The day opened with addresses from the President, Dr. Anthony Cemera, and Dr. Thomas Trebon, provost & vice president for academic affairs. Dr. Cemera spoke of the partnership which is formed between the university and the student. If that partnership is successful the student will gain a deeper love of learning, breadth of understanding, a vision and purpose in life, and a love for the service of others. "Learn how to use your minds," Cemera said. "Learn how to learn and fall in love with the process of learning."

Following President Cemera, Dr. Trebon emphasized setting the day, and making the most of every moment, "Take charge of your life for the lives of others," he said. Trebon spoke about the dreams of students, and that knowledge and the ability to expand our minds plays a part in the dreams we hold. "To exercise our freedom we need to dream. The university opens up dreams, liberating us from the paralysis of bad dreams and opening us up for the good dreams."

Students then proceeded to small group sessions with the student orientation leaders and members of the faculty, providing them with the resources to make the transition from high school to college a little easier.

Park Ridge complex opens to SHU residents

By Frank Mastroianni and Michael Champagne

To accommodate the growing number of Sacred Heart University students requiring campus housing, Sacred Heart University has begun leasing out units at the Park Ridge Condominium complex. The structure, located less than one mile from campus at the intersection of Park Avenue and Geduldig Street, is owned by Hooshang "Jim" Salashourian, and his company, Cyrus Realty. According to Salashourian, "At the beginning of the year, Bank Mart approached my company with a proposal for the purchase of an unfinished condominium complex. Having heard of Sacred Heart's interest in the project, I simultaneously began negotiating with the two parties."

After many meetings with Bank Mart officials and Dr. Paul Madonna, Sacred Heart's vice president of administration, Salashourian struck a deal with Bank Mart in March and followed quickly with SHU's signing of a lease in June. "The lease called for the renovation of the main building which will be deposited in the activity fee account for future parties."

Residents split on curfew

By Frank Mastroianni News Writer

A curfew imposed on resident students at Park Ridge and Taft Communities has been the source of mixed reactions among students. According to SHU's Director of Security, Robert Dalzota, "the curfew extends to 1:00 a.m. on weekdays and 2:00 a.m. on weekends." He added, "the decision for a curfew was part of a brainstorming effort between the Dean of Students, Student Activities, Residential Life and the Security Department."

Dalzota continued with, "the role of the Security Department is to provide the best standards for security. Having a curfew provides another dimension of protection for the students." He added that, "the fact that a majority of victim-crime occurs after 2:00 a.m. weighed heavily in the decision to impose a curfew."

Back to Classes party "crests" by: Yvonne M. Klemets, News Writer

From "Mony Mony" to Reggae music, the dance floor shook to music by D.J. Electrolite at the "Back to Classes" party held at Pinecrest in Shelton Friday, Sept. 6.

The event began at 5:00 p.m., lasted until midnight, and hosted a generous turnout, with 590 SHU students and close to fifty guests. Student Government funded the event which cost $6,000. Funds were granted from the student activity fee which every student must pay when registering for classes.

Not-SHU student guests paid a ten dollar admittance charge which will be deposited in the activity fee account for future parties. Coolers were not allowed so Pinecrest officials could control the dispensing of alcoholic beverages without fear that those under age would have access to it, but beer could be purchased by those 21+ and all the food and music was free.

In previous years, underage drinking was prevalent at "The Back to Class Party" due to the B.Y.O.B. nature of the function and due to accidents in connection with the party and the liability of both SHU and Pinecrest the old policy was changed.

Now those 21+ who wish to drink must wear colored bracelets allowing tenders identify the legal adults.

Some students feel that the new rule has retarded attendance in recent years, but others feel that the new rule should remain a requirement of the school.
NEWS BRIEFS

How Ya Like Us Now?

All of the general purpose classrooms have been refurbished this year. Which is given annually to a nursing student at SHU. For the 1991-92 academic year, the scholarship award is $650, to be applied towards tuition costs.

These courses are held on the SHU main campus.

Many Park Ridge students support the decision for a curfew. Resident David Mega, of Park Ridge, admits to no problem with the curfew. Likewise for fellow resident, Joseph Josenabria, "I don't mind the curfew," he said. "The school is doing it for security reasons, not to act like parents."

Still there are hard-liners who oppose the curfew. Adam Schiro, who was previously unaware of the curfew stated, "We're supposed to be adults and they're treating us like kids."

A student who declined to give her name said, "It's not like you are on your own. It's not what college is supposed to be like. College means you are on your own."

Daloia disagrees with the argument that the curfew is an infringement on the students' adulthood. "We are not here to act as parents. We don't restrict the movements of the students. However, we are responsible for the students, so we must provide the best protection."

Furthermore Daloia said, "The curfew is not a rule set in concrete. It is meant to be elastic. A student can extend the curfew's boundaries provided that we are aware of the exception."

He also added that the curfew is not a "lights out" rule. "The students are not required to be in bed by 2:00 am. We simply want them in a safe environment by 2:00 am."

Still, some students believe the weekend curfew should be abolished. Park Ridge resident Linda Polletta said, "The curfew is okay on weekdays, so students can get to bed for classes, but on weekends it's kind of ridiculous. Most students' curfews at home are later than 2:00 am."

The President of the Student Government, A.J. Gieselski noted a potentially serious problem with the rules of the curfew. "If a student has been out partying and is lucky enough to make it back to his or her dorm after the curfew, the university is going to tell that person he or she has to get back in a car or walk to campus just to get a security officer to let them into the building? That's ludicrous."

According to Daloia, "I made a promise to the parents. They believed my sincerity, so I must follow through. It's not an overwhelming rule. We will allow the students as much liberty as possible, and I think it will work out nicely."
Owner of Park Ridge signs lease with SHU that the deadline was met ahead of schedule," he added.

Included in the arrangement between Salahshourian and SHU was the construction of a recreation room and a laundry room. "Professionals make things look easy," said Salahshourian. "I'm pleased to report that everything was completed in a nice quiet way."

According to Salahshourian, Sacred Heart signed a three year lease with an option to renew for two more years. "Had SHU decided not to lease out Park Ridge, we would have continued the project confident that they would be leased out elsewhere," he said.

With students moved in, upkeep at Park Ridge is Salahshourian's primary concern. "I delivered SHU a building in mint condition and, therefore, expect it returned to me in mint condition," he said. "Maintaining this building is my chief concern, and students will be penalized financially for any problems.

Salahshourian will conduct monthly inspections, and a closed circuit television system will monitor entrances and the exterior, serving dual functions of round the clock security for residents as well as monitoring the exterior of the building to ensure that no vandalism or theft occurs.

But according to SHU security staff members, those cameras, although installed at the Park Ridge complex, have yet to be linked successfully to a monitor in the on-campus security office. A disagreement between the system engineers and the phone company is the main reason for the delay.

Each claim the other is at fault for where the problem lies, leaving SHU stuck in the middle.

But Director of Security for SHU, Robert Dalioia, indicated that "we expect that those cameras will be linked here within one week."

Access to the condominium-style units is with a card-key system and each door is wired to an alarm so that if a door is propped open or doesn't shut completely for any reason, an alarm will sound, requiring a response by an on-duty officer.

The Park Ridge units now become the second university-leased residence hall for students. Last fall, the university realized its goal of campus housing when it unveiled the Taft Commons complex adjacent to Central High School in Bridgeport.

However, delays in constructing schedules there forced the university to seek alternate housing for the new resident students temporarily. Students were housed for approximately two weeks in the Hi-Ho Motel and also in the Trumbull Marriott.

The cost per semester for residency at both complexes is $1,755.00 for housing and $575.00 for the mandatory meal-plan.

Orientation '91 draws to a close

Dean Bozzone was pleased with the day. "I'm very satisfied with it. There was stronger attendance, and the day moved crisply. I give a lot of credit to the student orientation leaders who work for nothing and give of themselves, and participation from faculty is improving."

I would like to add more in-depth information about college life, and social and cultural issues, which need to be addressed if we can extend it," Bozzone said.

SHU Spectrum-3
September 12, 1991
Welcome to SHU

A hearty welcome back is the first order of business to all returning students, staff, and faculty. Secondly, but no less important, is a welcome to any new people at Sacred Heart.

As you start this year, take a moment to reflect why you are here and what you expect to realize from SHU.

It is important to have some clear expectations and plans for without them, one will never know if those expectations have been achieved.

Plans for this paper are quite simple: to put out a quality product. Something that will be Inform the reader as well as be a voice for the people on this campus. This paper is yours; it belongs to each and everyone of the people of SHU. That means that you are the orchestra that will make this paper play and the editors are the conductors who cue you.

That doesn’t mean you can be asleep and wait to be prodded to play. Your input is needed to pull this off. So, for this first paper, it is my sincere hope that everyone takes a very close look at it, for contained within these pages is the basic blueprint for how future issues will appear.

If there is something in here that you agree with or disagree with, that’s your cue to make yourself heard. If there is something which you would like clarification on, again, take your cue.

If there is anything happening on-campus that sharpens your pencil or blunts your point, we want to know about it. The Letters to the Editor section is provided for issues that you want to bring out to the entire campus. If you have a concern or question that needs to be addressed on a more discreet level, look to pages six and seven as a reference point. There are as many people on campus to help you with your concerns as there are concerns for you to be helped with, but you have to make that first step.

With that said, The Spectrum extends to you our wishes for an exciting and beneficial school year. Make the most of it.

EDITORIAL POLICY: The opinions expressed on the editorial page(s), whether in signed columns or letters to the editor, are solely those of the authors. Unsigned editorials appearing in the far left column of the first editorial page represent the majority opinion of the Spectrum Editorial Board. Guest columns and letters to the editor are welcomed and encouraged. All are subject to editing for spelling, punctuation, grammar and clarity. Welcome back and good luck! For the seniors who will be graduating in the coming academic year I have a special request. Let us all start thinking of our graduation, in particular a keynote speaker that we can be proud of and in years to come remember.

In May I attended two graduations. One was at the University of Bridgeport. The Class of 1991 was to have as their keynote speaker, His Excellency Governor L. Douglas Wilder of Virginia. Sadly, due to the strike, he canceled at the last minute (literally).

In his stead, the Keynote Speaker was the talent agent of Regis and Kathy Lee! This gentleman, after having been awarded an Honorary Doctorate of Letters, admitted to the audience and graduates, that he had not even graduated from high school! The only memorable event of this graduation was that one of the graduating students went into labor as the commencement exercises began!

Why this long diatribe? Because I have been working on my degree since September 1980, I will be graduating in May, and I don’t want my graduation ceremony to be spoiled by having some tired old professor emeritus delivering the keynote speech! So, I am requesting that all graduating students of the class of 1992, start thinking of real people we can get to deliver our keynote speech!

In addition to this request I want to introduce my column to all and let it be known that no topics will be taboo. I will be discussing everything that affects Sacred Heart students. Nothing will be hallowed.

Some future topics are “Why is ‘The History of Sports in America’ a class here?” “Why a Library User Fee?” and “Why is Sacred Heart not complying with Tilton v. Richardson [1971]?” Of course, I will be open to any and all suggestions for future columns.

In fact, I will welcome suggestions. It may sound cliche, but this is your paper - USE IT!

So here’s to a genesis, a beginning. The purpose of this column is to cause controversy and to hopefully get the students of Sacred Heart to start thinking. The ball is now in your court.

I have titled my first column “Genesis” for a reason. This is the beginning of many things for many people.

For the incoming freshmen, it is the beginning of their long, precarious journey toward graduation. For the seniors, it is the beginning of the end of their long travail for the elusive Holy Grail, the diploma which, hopefully, will lead to the careers which all have planned and yearned for since childhood.

How many of us began this journey with the wide-eyed anticipation of youth? How many of us still maintain that anticipation, or have we been clouded by the realities of this corrupt world? Whatever the answer to these questions may be, I hope that the coming year will be void of tragedy for all.

As we begin this year, I want to welcome all freshmen and transfer students to the hallowed halls of Sacred Heart. To the sophomores and juniors I want to say us still maintain that anticipation, or have we been clouded by the realities of this corrupt world? Whatever the answer to these questions may be, I hope that the coming year will be void of tragedy for all.

As we begin this year, I want to welcome all freshmen and transfer students to the hallowed halls of Sacred Heart. To the sophomores and juniors I want to say...
After having been a student at SHU for the last two years, I've found there is a need for more communication between the student body and the administration. The student newspaper should be a vehicle for that communication. Through The Spectrum, I am now able to address issues of student concern by speaking directly with administration. Our concerns will be voiced, and I will publish the results of the discussions. Basically, if you have a problem I encourage you to actively seek me out. Write a letter to me at the Spectrum, put it in my mailbox outside Student Activities, or speak to me in person. I'll take the problem to administration and find out how the problem is being addressed. If you have a question, I'll have an answer.

For example, there has been concern voiced by the commuter students that many of the changes happening at SHU are in favor of the growing resident student population. One of the major concerns revolves around the Dining Hall (otherwise known as the cafe). The cafe has traditionally been the socialization center for SHU students, as we do not have a student union and most of us communicate to school. The kitchen will be under construction for the first 4-6 weeks of school, and then there are set hours for those who are on the meal plan to eat. "Where are we going to go to socialize with our friends?" asked one commuter student. Jim Bargiando, vice president of Enrollment Planning and Student Affairs suggests that students will still be able to socialize in the Dining Hall, which have been purchased for the Dining Hall, Hawley Lounge, and Chubby's. He thinks that Hawley Lounge may become the new hangout.

Hawley has always been a hit with commuter students, and it is seldom used because of the noise from the registrar's office and the cafe was available. The register is moving out. The Health Services, Career Services, and the Prologue are in. Hawley Dining Hall, Hawley Lounge, and the Prologue are in. Hawley Dining Hall, Hawley Lounge, and the Prologue are in. Hawley Lounge, which is no longer 21 years old, will be used as a place to eat food from 7:00am to 11:00pm, Monday through Friday, and 12:00pm to 8:00pm on Saturday and Sunday, and Hawley to hang.

Will it be enough space for us all? Only time will tell. There are also many new and wonderful things going on around campus. "We have the best activities calendar ever," boasts Tom Kelly, director of student activities. We as students will never be without something to do.

During the past 25 years have provided abundant evidence that colleges and universities are not the ivory towers carrying on academic pursuits insulated from the world around them. The mission of the university has always been to do the work of the mind that is a service to humankind and helps better society.

As humanity approaches the next century and millennium, we observe a world experiencing rapid change. Recent events in the Soviet Union alone are about to change permanently the face and character of the world as we know it. Technological advances, the evolution of an increasingly interdependent world economy, changing ethical standards and value systems, and other major global developments are creating new problems and posing new challenges. The university's role is to be the quality of life of all of humanity.

This has special implications for us as a university. It is incumbent upon us not only to continue fulfilling this role and mission in the 20th century, but also to recognize the need to prepare students to take their place in the global community, we at Sacred Heart University remain committed to lifelong learning and to the education of leaders.

In the age of fax machines and communications satellites, when ideas and information can be transmitted halfway around the world as quickly as across campus, we have a growing responsibility to mediate understanding among cultures, to help bridge the gaps among the peoples of the world, and to stress the simple truth of our kinship in a common family within God's creation.

I hope you will join me in the creation of this new world. You represent something less than our future.

Dear students,

I want to take this opportunity to extend to you a warm welcome to those of you who are returning and extend an especially warm welcome to those of you who are joining us for the first time.

There is much to be excited about this Fall. At a time when colleges and universities all over the country are experiencing a downturn in enrollment, we at Sacred Heart University remain committed to continuing, as in the past, to do the work of the mind that is a service to humankind and helps better society.

What's on your mind?

Hello Sacred Heart students,

I hope all of you have enjoyed your summer and are ready for the start of a great year here at SHU. This year we are continuing to experience the rapid changes that are going on around us. The Varsity Football team will begin its inaugural season this year and resident life is booming, while the Activities Office has put together a wide variety of events to help you enjoy your college experience.

This being my second term as the President of Student Government, I feel this year has the potential of being one that will be the best mix possible of academics and enjoyment.

To the incoming students I have one piece of advice: your college career is what you make of it.

Meaning, you should try to get involved. Join a club or come to an activity. By doing this you will find the unlimited possibilities that await each and every one of you. Sacred Heart is one of the few institutions of higher learning where it is easy to become a big fish in a small pond. So give it a try. In closing I would like to say that as YOUR President I will continue, as in the past, to do the best job that I can to serve you the students. If you have any problems or questions, or just want to talk, stop by my office directly across from the Activities Office and I'll see what I can do. Enjoy the year.

To Bear Arms vs. Two Bare Arms

By Phil Trahan

Although I was not present, it has been brought to my attention that the Activities Fair, which was held on campus on Tuesday, September 3, did not evolve free of controversy.

Two organizations which conspicuously caught the most attention were the brothers of Gamma Chi Zeta with their scantily clad mascot, and the distinguished members of ROTC replete with M-16 rifles. Perhaps a bouquet of roses? Or even carcass-cradled crotches of guns?

It is far more tasteless, and offensive, that fraternities must stoop to sexual stimulation for recruits. Only ostriches bury their heads in the sand.

For many students, the first couple of weeks include an adjustment period. Adjustments to new faces, new schedules and a new environment.

Some people will make a smooth transition and experience no problems as they embark on this time of their life, while others may experience problems or apprehensions beyond their control.

With that in mind, The Spectrum has compiled a reference list, complete with faces, of good people to know at Sacred Heart University.

Bear in mind that these are not the only good people to know on campus. Your own picture is not included, yet more than anyone else, you are, far and above, the best person for you to know.

The people at SHU are here to help you learn - to grow and grasp a better understanding of the world around you as well as your inner self. Any assistance you might need can be found here on campus and these people are just some of the good people to know.

90210 - Breaking One of T.V.’s Taboos

by Chris Conway
A & E Editor

The fall can mean different things for different people. Some associate it with cool breezes, or colored foliage, some think it means the beginning of a new school year, but for a media major like myself, the start of fall means one thing: the start of a new television season. This year, however, the FOX network stayed with my preconceived notion of when a particular show will begin. Rather than show reruns, the network ran a special summertime season of one of its highest rated shows “Beverly Hills 90210.”

Things for different people. Some begin the beginning of a new school year, but for a media major like myself, the start of a new television season. This year, however, the FOX network stayed with my preconceived notion of when a particular show will begin. Rather than show reruns, the network ran a special summertime season of one of its highest rated shows “Beverly Hills 90210.”

The show’s overall premise is about two teenagers, Brandon (Jason Priestly) and Brenda Walsh (Shannen Doherty), who move from Minnesota to Beverly Hills. “90210” has been compared by some critics to “thirtysomething” because it deals with the real problems its target audience may experience.

In the first episode of the summer season Brenda had a pregnancy scare after losing her virginity to her boyfriend Dylan McKay (Luke Perry). Unlike the average teen-oriented sitcom, the consequences of Dylan and Brenda’s sexual experience carried over several episodes over which time lots of questions about sexual responsibility were asked. “90210” is also very similar to a daily soap opera because it presents real problems such as having a parent arrested, teen drunk driving, and even a breast cancer scare all in a seemingly unreal environment such as Beverly Hills.

In a recent interview in L.A. Guide, Doherty commented on the amount of stress her role presents for her: “There was an instance in a script,” she says, “where they kept having Brenda say ‘I’ve got to lose five pounds.’” She told the producers, “If girls hear Brenda say that, they are going to become bulimic.” The producers agreed and pulled the lines from the script.

The show’s realism will be preserved in the upcoming season. Brandon will be the object of sexual obsession, a black family will move into the Walsh’s all white neighborhood, drug experimentation and street violence will also be covered.

A new set of episodes will air in the middle of September on the FOX network.

Abstract Information:

Prints by Eight Contemporary Artists

The exhibit, featuring the diverse works of painters Calvin Brown, Peggy Cypers, Jane Hammond and Madeleine Hatz, sculptors Nancy Bowen and Dan Devine, mixed media artists Carter Hodgkin and video artist Barbara Rosenthal, will run through Thursday, Oct. 24. Admission is free.

The show is curated by Ellen Joan Handy, formerly of the staff of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Department of Prints and Photographs. Handy is currently a professor of art history and chair of the art department at Bard College. She has been extensively published in Art Magazine and other publications.

Althoough printmaking is often thought of as that most traditional and technical area of the fine arts, it is now open to a wide range of unconventional and innovative practices. In the process of re-thinking the nature of printmaking, artists are discovering compelling solutions to the problems of two-dimensional art in the post-modern era.

Many of the processes used by the artists in this group show are unconventional, compared to the traditional printmaking. Techniques is not the goal in these works. Here, it is employed, not as an end in itself, but as a means to an end.

Many of these prints are also unique or part of very small editions. They have the freshness and urgency of first impressions suggesting the darker, more desperate quality of last resorts in our troubled times. These works are jam-packed with visual and conceptual information. The images are associative rather than illustrative. In this sense, the works are “abstract.”

This show assembles a group of eight artists so unlike as to be unclassifiable under a single heading. And this is the point, for freed entirely from the constraints of life, the works are presented in an otherwise ambivalent phase of art production in this century. Perhaps these works and the ideas that inform them underscore the lost audience at the end of the 20th century: that of diversity.

The show’s participants vary widely in their approaches to printmaking. Nancy Bowen, a sculptor, uses photographic imagery, and abstracts on steel plates which are allowed to rust organically. Brown is exhibited at the Whitney Museum of American Art and the Drawing Center in New York City. Jane Hammond, a painter, who was born in Bridgeport, Conn., uses quirky and idiosyncratic images in her monoprints. Hammond has had several one-woman exhibits in New York, Chicago and Paris. Calvin Brown, a painter, prints severe geometrical abstractions on steel plates which are allowed to rust organically. Brown has exhibited at the Whitney Museum of American Art and the Drawing Center in New York City.

Peggy Cypers, a painter, combines monoprint and collage with an interest in ecological issues. Cypers’ one-person shows include the Khiva Gallery in San Francisco and the Ground Zero Gallery in New York City. Her work has been covered extensively in a variety of arts publications.

Observations from a broad perspective:

By J. Broad
Columnist

Welcome back! I hope all you had a wonderful summer sweating at those summer jobs to pay for all that school work. How did it go? Hi! I’m J. Broad, this is my column. I will be your guide through my imagination. Please keep both hands on The Spectrum until the column comes to an uproariously hilarious stop (Yeah, but don’t hold your breath.)

To any new readers, welcome, and let me introduce myself — I am Mr. Cynical. Actually, I suppose I was Mr. Cynical and now I am Mr. Cynical with an optimistic pose. I truly don’t know what she sees in me. The second thing is that I have caught my fancy, but somewhere that nearly everything written in this column is the truth as I or someone I have interviewed sees it (except for the parts I exaggerate or make up because they sound better).

I truly don’t know what she sees in me or that won’t stop me from writing about her. You’ll also be hearing from her mom, Chris’s mom, my mom (again), and all the zany things my family does.

Those of you who were with me last year know that relationships are a laugh a minute, so buckle your seatbelts, grab your oxygen mask — this ride is about to begin.

Professor seeks to establish SHU theatre major

By Michael Champagne
Editor-In-Chief

Until now theatre at Sacred Heart University has been left to the communications students and others who are able to participate in it as an extra-curricular activity. Now however, Piotr Gzowski, hired this year as a full-time professor at SHU will be establishing a theatre major.

"I was hired to help the program develop a theatre major basically because I had been working with new and innovative forms of theatre," said Gzowski. "My goal is to take a different look at a piece of classic drama and interpret it in a way so that it can be brought to contemporary terms," he continued, "thus creating a new awareness and curiosity towards a piece of literature."

The idea is to create a whole new approach to theatre as an academic medium. But the emphasis isn’t so much just putting a play on, but to examine theatre as a contemporary expression for the issues of today. Gzowski said, "I was hired to help the program develop a theatre major basically because I had been working with new and innovative forms of theatre."" According to Gzowski the reader’s theatre will be kicked off in October with music by Andrzej Anweller. Performed by faculty members, the staged reading will be enacted and students will be able to get a feel for the program. They will then be encouraged to read scripts and poetry and to look at them from a different perspective.

The major itself will open up new avenues to students for studying theatrical literature through research writing, internships with professional companies and the publication of original academic papers," indicated Gzowski, "but right now, we’re looking at a very exciting new beginning and in a few years SHU will be considered an innovator in the field of theatre."

Other upcoming projects include the Acting I class presenting an original political satire at the end of the semester; a major piece about the history of Poland over the last 200 years of enslavement, called Grodka Ziemy: Song Of A Beloved Country, which will premiere on Nov. 24th and in April, a major adaptation of Sophocles’ Oedipus Rex will premiere at SHU.

This past summer, Gzowski produced & adapted Anton Chekhov’s The Bear as an American western and the play was performed at the Molson Summertime Festival in New Haven this past August. "We’re applying to take it to the Edinburgh Festival In Scotland next summer," said Gzowski with more than a hint of excitement in his voice.

Plans for next year include a black and white production of Euripides’ Trojan Women, and a multi-ethnic production of Aristophanes’ The Birds.

Of what he hopes to create with this new major Gzowski says, "I hope to use it as a vehicle for enormous creative activity on campus and to reinvigorate theatre as a viable medium of expression at Sacred Heart."

SHU's men's soccer team, currently ranked second in the nation, posted a record breaking season in 1990 under the leadership of Coach Joe McGuigan. An outstanding 14-6 record was accomplished, along with a first appearance in the ECAC tournament.

The team also produced one of the nation's leading goal scorers, Daniel Dos Santos, who was elected second team All-American. He became the third pioneer of the nation's leading goal scorers. He is a candidate for the silver boot. The team is looking to improve on last year's record setting season.

The new faces include: Fernando Fernandez and Christopher Earle who are expected to fill the void left by Dos Santos. Ira Turner, Paul Dopilka, Denis Gomes and Chester Chechowski are also exceptional players who will most likely help to take the Pioneer kickers to the top. These new comers, McGuigan believes, will be "excellent" and will probably "win starting positions over what he thought was the best team last year."

The team's dedication is already apparent, training double sessions daily until the first day of classes, logging a total of about 15 hours a week.

Although there are a few minor injuries, the team was confident about their first game on Saturday, Sept. 7 against Concordia College at Bronxville, NY.

"We have proven to everybody..." demonstrates a really attractive style of soccer that everybody can enjoy." said McGuigan. The team he said, are in good shape and expect to do well."

The first soccer game, against Concordia saw the Pioneers bring the Condordia defense back in its only goal, making the final score 3 - 1.

McGuigan conceded that the game was well played, but the next game against Stonehill College, the North Eastern champion, will be more challenging, he contends, "the players are in good shape and expect to do well."

Pioneer Practices Payoff

One might not expect a team that has been together for several weeks to come away with a win on their first scrimmage. But hard training and determination kept the new SHU team from posting a loss, tying Stonybrook of Long Island at 20-20, amid the heat of the afternoon sun.

Standouts for the Pioneers included Dave LeSage who Assistant coach Steve Fordyce characterized as a team leader. Dave Vogt ran a 50 yard quarterback sneak and Troy Young had some excellent runs. Quinn Brito, a 6-2 halfback from Rhode Island and Fullback Wade Likens from Pennsylvania both had touchdown runs. Likens also ran for a two point conversion. Vogt contributed with a well executed sneak to tie the game in the forth period.

Pioneer all-stars shine in benefit game

On August 10, eight present and past Pioneer baseball players took place in the Peter Butanowicz benefit all-star game at The University of Bridgeport.

Under the Bridgeport Senior City League all stars: Al Carrara, Scott Schilling, Chris Tierney and Anthony Desabella are current Pioneers that took part in the event.

Former Pioneers: Rich Licursi, Pete Yarasavich, and Jose Escobar all shared their talents for the Bridgeport team.

For The West Haven Twilight league current Pioneer, Bryan Muthersbaugh made his appearance.

The West Haven Twilight men edged The Bridgeport All-Stars by a score of 9-5.

A Sacred Heart Pigskin Preview

By Brian Kerns

Sports Writer

Football has finally arrived at SHU! Last year it was lacrosse, soon there will be teams, but right now the focus is on Head Coach Gary Reho and his squad of over 100 football players. The season kicks off on September 14 in Brockport, New York against SUNY.

Coach Reho, his assistants and the players are all optimistic about the season ahead. “We’re putting together the best possible team we can,” said Coach Reho.

There’s definite reason for the positive outlook. With such a large roster, the team is loaded with running backs, wide receivers, defensive backs, and just about every other position.

“We’re putting together the best possible team we can,” said Coach Reho.

The size of the roster is indicative of the drawing power of one common denominator: Coach Reho.

“Coach didn’t jerk me around like the other colleges did. The whole school and staff were really nice,” Ron Stopkoski, Twin brothers Ron and Rob from Morgan High School in Clinton, CT. are turning more than a few heads. Both brothers play offense and defense but its a good bet that you’ll see Ron at running back and Rob at the strong safety position.

Other freshman stand-outs include: Joe Martin of Derby, the Bridgeport Post’s 1990 Defensive Player of the Year; John Frain, an All-state defensive back from Naugatuck and record-setting quarterback Dave Vogt from West Canada, NY.

The size of the roster is indicative of the drawing power of one common denominator: Coach Reho.

“Coach didn't jerk me around like the other colleges did. The whole school and staff were really nice,” Ron Stopkoski.

“Coach Reho is a coach on the field. Off the field he's a friend. Also the classes here are small and the student-teacher ratio is small,” added brother Rob.

Other players expressed the same feelings. “Coach Reho is a straight up kind of guy. When it's time to be serious, he'll be serious,” said Jose Sanabria, a linebacker from New London. “But,” he adds, “he'll joke around when he wants to.”

Coach Reho is definitely a winner. In his six seasons as coach at Worcester (Mass.) Academy, he compiled a 41-11 won-lost record. And in the 1986 and '87 seasons his teams went undefeated (9-0).

He's here to win too. “Most guys still on the team are here to play. We went rid of a lot of dead wood. It's been a long wait for the players and its been a long wait for the school,” said Coach Reho.

With a multiple offense that includes the run-n-shoot formation, don't be surprised to see the Pioneers put some points on the board and some wins on the record.

The first home game is September 21, at 1:00 against Iona. Homecoming will be the third home game on October 19 at 1:00 against Nichols College.

All of the games are on Saturdays and the 10 game schedule (five at home) runs until November 16. Plan to attend the September 21 home opener and let's give the Pioneers as much support as we can in this first season.
